

State School Cast Presents Musical

Youngsters from Willowbrook State School, with assistance from television actress Carol Knox, presented a version of "Guys and Dolls" Saturday at the 14th annual luncheon of the Benevolent Society for Retarded Children.

The event, proceeds of which will benefit the Willowbrook school, Gouverneur Hospital and Bronx State Hospital, took place in the grand ballroom of the New York Hilton, Manhattan.

Dr. Frank Glasser, acting director of Willowbrook, and speaker at the event, stressed the educational responsibilities of the institution.

He cited the musical presentation and also a performance by the school's band as examples of the retarded child's potential when given proper assistance.

Retarded to Gain From Luncheon Set for Saturday

14th Annual Benefit for Children to Be Held in Hilton Ballroom

The Benevolent Society for Retarded Children will hold its 14th annual luncheon Saturday in the Grand Ballroom of the New York Hilton.

Irving Silverman, former president of the society, a chapter of the New York State Association for Retarded Children, is chairman of the event. Proceeds will help the society's program at the Willowbrook State School on Staten Island, Gouverneur Hospital and Bronx State Hospital.

Youngsters from the Willowbrook School, assisted by Carol Knox of television, will present a version of "Guys and Dolls" and a band performance.

The society's funds are used for equipment for indoor and outdoor recreational activities for retarded youngsters. Hearing aids are also provided as well as equipment for operating rooms and research.

The society aims to help the retarded children achieve some self-reliance and to vary the life of children who must remain in institutions.
