

STATEN ISLAND, N. Y., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1966

Willowbrook State School's newest additions are two wings to Building Three, the academic school department, constructed at a cost of $1.2 million. In the south wing, pictured above, trainable patients receive instruction in home economics, music, painting and academic studies.

New Classrooms Added to State Complex

Miss Constance Kieffer instructs a class of educable children ages 11 to 14 in one of the ultra modern classrooms in the North Wing. A total of 24 additional teachers were hired for the new classrooms.

S.I. Advance Photos by Frank J. Johns

Patients learn various homemaking skills in a realistically designed two-unit modern electric kitchen. They also work on the latest equipment in a sewing room, typing practice room and general purpose shop.