

State school gets federal grant

Congressman John M. Murphy's office announced today a federal social rehabilitation increase grant for Willowbrook State School. The first year grant for the three-year program will be $99,949 and has been marked for toddler training and stimulation for maximum potential.

According to Dr. Jack Hammond, director at Willowbrook, the grant is a renewal. "We have had this program for four years and this grant means we can continue it for three more years," he said. "The program enables us to bring severely mentally retarded children to a better functioning level. We've been very pleased with the program."
