$1,135 collected to aid Willowbrook

In four hours, 15 members of the New Springville Civic Association managed to collect $1,135 from Staten Islanders who want to help the patients at Willowbrook State School.

After donating toys and clothing to the institution, and taking a tour of two buildings, members of the association proceeded to Victory Blvd. and Richmond Ave. where they displayed a sign reading: "Give a little, help alot for the children at Willowbrook."

David Cohen, president of the association, expressed surprise at the number of motorists who stopped and "gave anywhere from pennies to a $5 bill."

"We plan to ask Dr. Hammond to submit a list to us," Cohen said, "with a number of items that could be bought within the $1,135 budget. Then we'll buy what we deem most important and give it to the institution."
