

Willowbrook attendant suspended

A female attendant at Willowbrook State School who had charge of only four boys was suspended yesterday on negligence charges when one of the boys was found with his back bruised and discolored with welts.

Mrs. Eleanor Janover said that when she went to pick up her 10-year-old son, Mark, for a dental appointment Thursday she noticed his back and began asking attendants what had happened.

"No one could tell me anything" Mrs. Janover said, "and it looked like my son had been badly beaten."

Mrs. Janover took Mark, a resident of Building 6, to Brookdale Hospital in Brooklyn where, she said, doctors examined him for possible internal bleeding.

Dr. James Murphy, acting director of Willowbrook, said he has begun an investigation.
