

Rain can't KO cops' day for center kids

In spite of the rain, approximately 75 police officers from the Brooklyn South area encompassing 15 precincts and 25 civilian volunteers went ahead with plans yesterday to spend a day with more than 500 Willowbrook Developmental Center residents.

The officers, who were either on their day off or had switched shifts, paid for the hamburgers, hot dogs, ice cream, soda and presents that they gave to the residents in the gymnasium at the center.

Entertainment came in the form of a band, Disney characters, games, an impromptu limbo contest and three clowns.

The day was coordinated by Frank Seddio, who has volunteered his time at Willowbrook for the past 10 years with his Knights of Columbus council.
