

Editorial page

Our opinion

They really SERVE

Once again, commendations were passed out to hundreds of Staten Island's senior citizens for devoting their energy and skills in retirement to help people of all ages and conditions, at Willowbrook Developmental Center, at hospitals and in many other programs. It was the annual dinner of SERVE (Serve and Enrich Retirement Through Voluntary Effort), an Island program of the Community Service Society that has gained national recognition and has been the model for many other organizations throughout the country.

We're proud of the fact that in concern for one's fellow man there's no generation gap.