

Group home

Six mentally retarded adults are living in a group home in Tottenville in a setting that is very much like the homes of other families in the community.

The home-like setting was made possible by the Staten Island Aid for Retarded Children and visitors were welcomed to visit the home yesterday at a special celebration. The retarded adults have lived in the group home since last July. Four of the people are former residents of the Staten Island Developmental Center, Willowbrook, and two formerly lived with their families on Staten Island.

They have help in running the house from Staten Island Aid workers who are present 24 hours a day.
