

Not only do children learn about the problems of the handicapped through the words of The Kids Project puppets, they also try to walk a mile in their shoes. Here, students in Markham Intermediate School close their eyes and try to do simple, everyday tasks like tying their shoes and buttoning their sweaters to experience what it feels like to be blind.