

Sonia Braniff listens to the sweet music made by some of her special friends.

S.I. Advance Photo by Tony Carannante

"A handicapped child who has been treated as normally as possible from day one fares better than one who has been coddled. It's a mistake for parents to feel they have to compensate for the disability."