

... with his director of operations, Henrik Dutleba

Tyrone Daniels, employee of the Staten Island Developmental Center and local president of the Civil Service Employees Association, asks why he received no response to a paper outlining alternatives to the governor's plan to phase out the facility.

Businesswoman Margaret Sklenar, representing both Staten Island tavern owners and the Chamber of Commerce, tells the governor the groups opposed raising the drinking age to 21 and opposed current utility charges tied to mass transit.

Page 6
of 7