

xecutive director. eth Fromkin, deputy executive director of Lifestyles for the Disabled, and Richard Salinardi

ADVANCE PHOTOS # IRVING SILVERSTEIN

Mary Pannese serves lunch at the Lifestyle Cafe.

Y JANE MILZA

n to find a job each person can puty executive director Beth omkin. "We do everything we id Lifestyles for the Disabled's mething each person can do, "We do whatever we can to find strictive. rle Cafe's restaurant setting too nsumers who found the Lifedeveloped specifically for two Typical is the messenger serv-

It gives them a sense of self-esarby buildings. on suns Their job now is to deliver daily people working in > now, and the disabled learn to do their abilities allow." things for themselves as far as there's always a support staffs styles for the Disabled live at age from 21 to 60. About 75 per-Disabled programs. They range in who have dual diagnosis are in-volved in the Lifestyles for the in community residences where home; others live in apartments or cent of the people involved in Lifeseverely retarded as well as those Individuals who are mildly to and their families to make sure in-dividual goals are met. They'll the agency work with consumers Service coordinators attached to for consumers to do something create a productive environment nardi: "Our goal always is to mented other programs set up by the agency since it was estab-The restaurant concept complein 1994. According to SaliAgency finds jobs for developmentally disabled clients consumers have made since the menu consisted only of breakfast fano and Angela Donatone, have Staff members, Camille DiSteits beginnings. They've noemployed in the program the progress the disabled

since

Mrs. DiStefano, an Annadale resimore delivery orders," recalled "When they added lunch, we got snow from sidewalks all over the because of its outreach to the combled as "an agency without walls" grams. A housekeeping team services the state's multiply disa-Staten Island neighborhoods. ings on the premises as well as in bled unit and day treatment prosenior citizen housing in various meanwhile works in various build-A laundry project, for example for Lifestyle workers to remove Borough President's Office several winters ago when the Island storms. A telephone hotline called experienced severe snow and ice team started as an affiliate of the The community beautification paint and clean-up work. Staten Island business firms to do even have contracts with several patients and the elderly. They tion, and do yard cleanup for heart with the Lynne Steinman Foundaies, plant flowers in conjunction Team members work in cemeter-munity. Math, reading and inneed to maintain jobs in the comsures and telephone skills they skills, travel training, safety meavariety of sumers the choice of learning a and computer programs give con-Lifestyle's functional academic independent living struction on money handling also