SICCA BOARD:

Summer Allocations Hit Six Figures

Despite being in the turmoil of a student challenge for increased voting majority, the SICC Association has been able to fund well over $100,000 worth of projects for summer and the forthcoming academic year. Summer study abroad, the Women's Center, Conventions and the News Ferry are just a few of the areas covered over just a few of the areas covered over June and July sessions. Following is a breakdown of some of the key funding decisions to date:

With workshops covering Institutional Governance, Educational Innovation, Legal Rights, Organizing Skills, Minorities and Third World, Women on Campus, Lobbying, Campus Press, Economic Alternatives and Services, and Unionism on Campus, the convention runs for nine days. Total student expenses for the trip are $2900. STUDENT LOANS-FUNDS:

Alumni Elect New Officers

In a surprise vote, Edgar Gray was elected President of the Alumni Association over Alan Shark. Gray, a 16-year veteran of studies at the school, graduated this June.

Gray comes into a seriously weakened Alumni Association with the recent agreement to eliminate its seat on the SICC Association Board of Directors and its reduction to one seat on the Association as a whole.

Other new officers include Barbara Solon, Vice President; Warren Mc-Bride, Treasurer and Fernande Bayda, Secretary. Alumni Association offices are presently housed in the Evening Student Government and Evening News headquarters (C-111).

As Frank Allen, who introduced the motion, explained it, the fund will be primarily aimed at loans to students who anticipate funds coming in (for instance, scholarship checks) but need immediate monies. There was some concern expressed over the specific guidelines to be used. for instance, the provious learn expressions to be used. the previous loan arrangements only provided for one-half of the projected monies a student expected. Allen held that he favored a three-quarters ratio but advised that some be held back, as often amounts projected do not match amounts actually received.

An Imprest Fund has also been established in the amount of $10,000. The fund is to be used, at the discretion of the Treasurer, for salary advances to students, faculty and staff of the college. Each advance from the fund is to be secured by a negotiable promissory note with a due date not to exceed 60 days from the date of issue. In essence, the Imprest Fund will

There was some discussion over Work Study employed students whose checks are held up due to late time sheets. As Stamos E. Zades, Dean of CHOICE, explained it, Federal Law puts responsibility for submission of time sheets with the Supervisor. He advised any students whose Supervisors put time sheets in late to see him, and agreed that late checks due to late time sheets would fall under the Imprest Fund coverage.

The Day Session Student Government, acting on a report from its Committee on the Student Center, allocated space to clubs and organizations for the coming semester at a meeting on June 12th.

To alleviate the situation the Alumni Office which presently shares quarters with the Evening Session Student Government will be relocated.

While her candidacy was unopposed, her assumption of office was surrounded by a series of parliamentary maneuvers that continued until her election on the third ballot.

Chairing the meeting as the incumbent, Sanders made a ruling that 16 votes, the number of Senators present at the meeting, would serve as the necessary majority for election. With that ruling a unanimous vote became necessary for election. The floor was then open for nominations. Several other Senators had their name placed in nomination but each declined. Sanders became the only nominee.

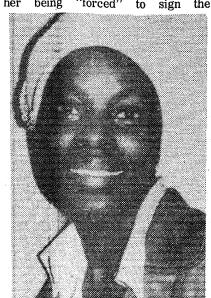

Dino Lagravinese, Senator from Business Transfer, suggested that a rider be placed on the term of office of Chairperson which would require the Chair to be vacated within the first month of the Fall semester. His request was based on the "short length of time that each of us has known each other and that the summer could be spent getting to know each other better, and then we may want someone else." His suggestion was not favorably received by the assembly and the balloting began. Sanders received 15 votes on the first ballot with one negative vote cast. A recess to arrive at the reason for the negative vote was held and then a second ballot. Again a 15-1 vote. Following the second ballot, a recess was again called to arrive at a compromise.

Library Gets Book Budget

Staten Island Community College has been selected for a $5,000 federal grant to augment its library. The grant is from the Federal Office of Education. The $5,000, awarded to SICC under the federal College Library Resources Program, will be used by the college to purchase books and audio-visual resource material, according to Professor Daniel Vann, chairman of the SICC Library Department.

As mentioned above, the International Center had its formal beginning in September 1970, two full years earlier, but the actual proposal for it dates back to 1968, when Professor Calderon made and presented it to Dean Stamos O. Zades with the backing

The Dean said he would give the matter his fullest consideration, saying he though something definitely could and should be done. He agreed that my previous background in social work, group work, teaching, activities in International Education, and as Faculty Advisor of the then blooming Language Club, would be greatly beneficial in setting up our program.

The Dean, being a very busy person asked me to return in about a month, which I did Nothing had been worked out, so I was told to return a few weeks later, which I again did. Social Science Advocacy . .

In the short time since the formation of SICC, an excellent Social Science faculty has been assembled (as compared, certainly, with most two-year colleges in the country) and a broad range both of traditional and unusual courses are being offered. The emphasis has been on the transferability of courses because the majority of our students receiving the Associate decision soon. diploma go on to 4-year schools. Accordingly, the faculty have been recruited to meet traditional standards ("traditional" in the best sense) of education, teaching experience, and scholarly activity. Because the em-phasis has been in this direction, we have had no (a) applied courses, that is, career-oriented courses, (b) topical courses focusing on issues of the day, or (c) emotional-social self-improvement courses. If my Social Science colleagues were polled on the desirability of such courses, opinions would be quite divided; however, the existence of The Experimental College which offers some of these courses has removed some of the pressure on The Social Science Departments, and we do tailor courses to the requirements of other curricula, e.g., Child Care, Nursing.

My impression is that the Social Science Departments have taken the general position that their purpose is to offer and teach courses of the kind offered at the best four-year colleges at the highest possible level. They have made only limited adjustments to Open Enrollment, the specific character of our student body, or the New York City environment. I am unclear about the background of this explicit and implicit set of decisions, but my impression is that they were not seriously questioned until President Birenbaum took office. Since that time, the creation of various experimental programs and the Experimental College has encouraged the Social Science Departments to maintain their position that their major responsibility is to offer the first two years of an academic bachelor's degree at a level as close as possible to that found at the better four-year colleges

Early in the Fall of 1972, the President "suggested" the reorganization of the Social Science Departments (at that time, there were two departments) into a Division with sub-divisions. No clear statement was made of WHY the reorganization was suggested, that is, whether the President had in mind improving the courses now being offered, increasing the amounts that students learn in our standard courses, etc. OR changing a substantial part of our course content teaching methods, and course and curriculum organization, OR both.

The Social Science faculty response (not necessarily my own) was ap-prehension that the "suggested" division structure would greatly reduce the autonomy and authority of the two departments, and the faculty countered (based on a meeting of the full Social Science faculty) with the proposal of a division made up of the existing departments. The President rejected this, noting that he would make a At the next full-faculty meeting, motion was passed (it happens that I made the motion) creating a Social Science Curriculum Coordinating Committee made up of the three chairmen (there were now three departments as of January 1973) and representatives of each of the eight Social Science (and Philosophy) disciplines. Although this Committee explicitly does not have the authority to bind the constituent departments to any action, I intended that it should become an Executive Committee for the Social Sciences and it has become that. The simplest illustration is that a year ago, if a reporter had wanted to interview one person who could represent the Social Sciences, no such person would

The greatest success has been in working out ways of operating together, and in the rapid acceptance of the principle that our courses should be cordinated, integrated, and evaluated continually. I have been able to conince my colleagues that the Social Science course offerings and teaching approaches should have a direction and focus. Our first move toward that goal has been the acceptance of an ex-perimental theme, Law and Freedom, for the coming year; this will involve new courses, lectures, films, and other activities. The precedent has also been established that all new course roposals from any of the three Social cience Departments must clear through the Social Science Curriculum Coordinating Committee which examines their relation to our other courses, etc. There is a new at-mosphere within the departments, too; for example, the Psychology-Sociology Department has just approved for offering its first "Applied" course, the oriering its first Applied course, the Psychology of Counseling. Again, at least one of our faculty, Prof. Taub in Psychology, will be directing in-ternships in connection with his

RESOLVED, That the Board's Bylaws, where necessary, be waived in order to create an interim Faculty Council as outlined in above resolution.

EXPLANATION:

At present, no Faculty Council exists at Staten Island Community College. Discussions are under way leading to the adoption of a restructuring of the College's governance. The above resolution would permit the establishment of a Faculty Council with broader representation of the teaching staff of the College and with broader par-ticipation of the teaching community in the elective process. It is intended that this body will serve on an interim basis during the present deliberations on restructuring. Upon the adoption of the new governance proposals, this Faculty Council will be replaced by the new legislative body to be developed in the course of present negotiations.

ORGANIZATION AND GOVERNANCE OF THE CITY UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK

On May 5, 1969, the Board of Higher Education adopted a statement on "The Restructuring of Governance at City University." That statement, in part, reads as follows:

The structure of a university in society must be responsive to the legitimate needs of its members. To do this today requires the creation of new processes for communication and decision-making which permits each group of participants to feel that it can influence the institution as a matter of both right and

The establishment of such processes will not stifle dissent or eliminate the conflict of ideas which are central to the concept of a university. Rather, it would serve to create a climate in which rationality could be focused upon the issues which its members consider to be of greatest importance.

In considering the restructuring of the University towards these ends, four problems of major

1. The rapid growth in the size and complexity of the University makes it more difficult for the Board of Higher Education to be as responsive as it must be to the needs of the individual colleges. Means must be found of moving the focus of major decision-making closer to the colleges.

It would seem appropriate to me that the rules under which the Faculty Council conducts its business could be made clear and, in some instances, revised. May I uggest the following procedures that the Faculty Council might adopt, and ask you whether you think it might be possible to put this proposal before the Faculty Council at an appropriate time?

1) The Faculty Council should recognize the importance of decorum and procedure in the conduct of its affairs. It should conduct itself with the propriety of public legislative body.

2; Meetings of the Faculty Council should be public, unless by proper vote it convenes an executive session (this practice should be discouraged unless a compelling reason is put forth for such an executive session). In either event, the time and place of its meeting should be widely posted throughout the community at east 48 hours prior to convening.

3) Complete minutes of its proceedings should be kept. These minutes should be complete enough to inform persons not present what went on and the general thrust of debate. Minutes of the Council should be made available to the community within 48 hours after a meeting. The constituency should be told publicly when and where minutes may be obtained.

4) No action of the Faculty Council should be recognized unless it takes proper egislative form. The simple reporting of a legislative action in the minutes of the ody is an incomplete and unacceptable legislative form. All resolutions and proclamations must each take separate form and be properly distributed. It would also seem that once they are enacted they should at least bear the signature of the Secretary of the Faculty in order to take effect.

5) All proposed resolutions, bills, and proclamations should be distributed to the members of the Faculty Council at least 24 hours before the session in which they are to be debated. Proposed bills should be posted and made available to the entire faculty at least 24 hours before they are debated and acted upon.

6) Regarding the technical nature of composing legislation, enacting legislation, and implementing it, I would assume that the members of the Faculty Council, and the faculty in general, are well informed about Anglo-American tradition and custom. If additional help is needed. I would suggest that the Faculty Council invite an appropriate authority to provide a workshop experience for us. I believe he would also be helpful in talking to Faculty Council members about proprieties, forms, and procedures that are part of the legislative process.

7) It should also be made clear which version of Robert's Rules of Order the Faculty Council is presently operating under. This point seems to be in dispute, and the clarification of this matter is basic to the effective involvement of all Council members. Furthermore, it would be interesting to know if our Faculty Council has its own by-laws, where these by-laws differ from the version of Robert's Rules of Order we are using, and if such by-laws exist, should they not be made available to all members of the Faculty Council immediately for their study.

8) It would also seem to me that a process be established (possibly a small agenda committee of the Faculty Council) so that the most important items could be placed on the agenda at such a time that they could be resolved. Also, it would seem that the Council might adopt a time limit in which matters of a nonexceptional nature could be discussed. I think this has been tried in the past, but certainly has not been adhered to recently.

D. Faculty-Student Governance.

1. THE EXISTING STRUCTURE. Under the BHE bylaws existing when the college was established in 1956, the faculty as a whole was charged with the following duties:

ceeded one hundred members.

It happened that the faculty reached one hundred at a time (1969-1970) when BHE contemplated changes in the form of faculty governance.

Pending approval of a new gover-nance plan which was to fulfill the May . 1969 "Statement of Policy on the Organization and Governance of the

S. I. C. C. Association

"The faculty shall meet at least once in each semester or oftener upon call by the president or by petition of ten per cent of its members. The faculty shall be responsible, subject to the Board, for the formulation of policy relating to health and scholarship, standards of admission, the attendance and discharge of students, the curriculum and study programs, the granting of degrees, student activities, extracurricular activities and student discipline. The faculty shall also be responsible for and shall establish rules governing the use of the college name by organizations and clubs. It shall make its own bylaws consistent with these bylaws and conduct the educational affairs customarily cared for by a college faculty. The president, or in his absence, a dean designated by the president shall preside at its meetings. Proxy or mail voting or voting by persons on leaves of absence shall not be permitted." Fact Finder's Report

What's A Fact Finder?

With an October 1st strike deadline set, the negotiations between the Professional Staff Congress (PSC) and Board of Higher Education (BHE) remain, as of our publication deadline, Designated by staff, in spring of 1972, to succeed the United Federation of College Teachers (UFCT) and Legislative Conference (LC) as conflict with this Agreement. bargaining agent for CUNY faculty, the PSC has been in a state of negotiation or including the state of negot Education since that time.

When direct negotiations failed, mediation was undertaken for 12 days and afterwards the PSC appealed for "fact finding" under the procedural dictum of the Taylor Law (the law governing civil service labor negotiations, strike rights, etc.).

"Fact Finding" involves the delegation of professional arbitrators by the New York State Public Employment Relations Board (PERB). In this case, the panel of three "fact finders" held hearings on 14 occasions and 11 executive sessions dating from November, 1972 to May of this year. According to their report, 152 exhibits were submitted (the last filed May 4, 1973) and the transcript of proceedings ran to 2155 pages.

The initial three year contract, dating from Fall of 1969 to August 31, 1972 was . the first formal collective bargaining arrangement in the CUNY teaching system. At that time, the UFCT represented lecturers and teaching assistants and the LC represented staff in professional titles as well as administrative and ancillary personnel. With the merge, the Professional Staff Congress now represents 16 to 18 thousand staff members in various titles formerly covered by the other two

Staff members not covered by the PSC are clerical workers (Gittleson union), cafeteria workers (Teamsters) and other "trade" categories (ie. electricians) covered by their own

Following are highlights of the Fact

Scope of Bargaining

During the Fact Finders' hearings, the BHE challenged the authority of the panel to make findings and recommendations on items such as governance, distribution in rank (number of Professors, Assistant Professors, Instructors. in relation to total number of faculty or administrative personnel), counselors, and nondiscrimination clauses in regards to

(BHE) The BHE claimed negotiation of such subjects was discretionary with the BHE and that it was under no legal obligation to bargain on them.
(PSC) The PSC argued that the disputed items affected terms or

Board was required to bargain. (PANEL) The Fact Finders agreed that the issue of the specific items being mandatory or optional subjects of bargaining was not in their jurisdiction; that it would be up to PERB or the Courts to settle the matter; and that since the parties had argued on the merits of the issues and Fact Finders would only be acting in an advisory capacity with "no prejudice to either party's right to challenge the propriety of our doing so:" the panel concluded they would evaluate the issues despite conditions of employment and the

Governance

(BKGRND) In administering the operations of a sizeable number of educational institutions under its State mandate, the Board (BHE) was caught between continuing the autonomy of previously independent components and the need for creating a structural arrangement to promote uniformity and centralization of its authority in a single, uniform administration through governing throughout the system. Out of this crunch, explains the Fact Finder report, came the present PSC-BHE conflicts over governance.

CUNY now embraces 22 individual imits with dates of founding or affiliation ranging from 1847 to 1968. Of these, 13 units were added in the 1960's alone. Besides the CUNY Graduate School and University Center, (1961) Senior Colleges include: Baruch (1968) Brooklyn (1930); City (1847); Medgar Evers (1968); Hunter (1870); John Jay (1964); Lehman (1931); Queens (1937) Richmond (1965); York (1966), Community Colleges include: Manhattan CC (1963); Bronx CC (1957); de Hostos CC (1968); Kingsborough CC (1963); La Guardia (1968); NYC CC (1946); Queensborough CC (1958) and SICC (1958). In addition, Mt. Sinai School of Medicine is affiliated (1963) and two contracted Urban Centers (with SUNY) operate from Manhattan and NYC

Community Colleges (both 1967). In May of 1969 the BHE issued a governance statement which espoused four goals: "Means must be found of moving the focus of major decisionmaking closer to the colleges; Means must be found to permit the institutions to take part in creating their own variations in patterns of governance; Means must be found to create a flexible and responsive pattern for "The provisions in a duly adopted governance at the University-wide college governance plan shall super-

In September of 1969 the BHE entered nto its first written agreement with the Legislative Conference (predecessor of PSC). Key items contained in the agreement were:

Three weeks later, in October, the Board concluded its agreement with UFCT and included the same

On January 25, 1971, the Board approved "in principle" a statement on he subject of governance which noted pressure for increased centralization of controls, policy and operations. The statement also pointed out:

"The advent of collective negotiations under the Taylor Act, has been a noteworthy legal as well as practical, pressure toward centralization of University responsibilities. Under the law, the collective negotiating agents have exercised their right to deal with the University as a whole. The resulting contracts and structures have tended to make the office of Chancellor the obvious direct court of appeals. Application of the contracts has also tended to impose uniform and rigid personnel practices across the entire University."

EXISTING PRACTICES. Noting the

Under its authority to amend and waive By-Laws, the Board offered a five year release from its By-Laws while institutions undertook to develop their governance plans. As of December, 1972, six institutions had approved governance plans; three had tentatively approved plans; four had plans under revision or review; and six had not yet submitted plans (Ed. Note: SICC has not adopted a plan to date).

One plan discussed at Fact Finder hearings was that of John Jay College of Criminal Justice. At that college, students are allowed a seat on The Committee on Faculty Personnel (Ed. Note: equivalent to a seat on SICC's Personnel and Budget Committee). Recommendations of that committee are made to the College Council (e.g. Faculty Council) for action. Recommendations and actions with respect to appointments, promotions and matters relating to Faculty job security must be reported to the college President, who decides whether or not the College Council should consider them.

(PSC) In its final position prior to impasse the Professional Staff Congress took the position that "Contract language be amended to establish the Agreement (union contract) as the governing document in event of any inconsistency or conflict between By-Laws or policies of the Board and the Agreement." It sought to restrict those new colleges operating under the waiver (independent governance plans) to the adoption of policies consistent with the Agreement; proposed to retain the right to open negotiation on those matters not discussed in the parties' collective bargaining; proposed restrictions on the role of students in governance, prohibiting voting on Personnel and Budget Committees; Urged continuation, protection and, in some in-stances, enhancement of various practices currently in effect (involving faculty prerogatives and privilege as practiced at individual institutions or CUNY wide).

(BHE) The Board of Higher Education sought language which would constitute the written Agreement as entire uncontract language and governance derstanding between the parties, conflicts over the University's need for terminating all prior agreements and the Budget that led the BHE into a move to place all Counselors on HEO status and a later compromise with the PSC that led to leaving college Presidents the "option" to place

Counselors in either line. Currently, according to the Fact Finders, there are 786 Counselors employed in CUNY, 115 with Ph.D. degrees, 475 with Master's degrees, 174 with Baccalaureate degrees, and 7 with no degrees. Distribution by title shows that 444 of the 497 in the Senior Colleges and 261 of the 289 in Community Colleges are in instructional titles Numbers of tenured and non-tenured counselors in each rank or title follow:

(BHE Proposal) The BHE seeks to add to the Recognition Clause of the contract a listing of three Counselor titles, Grades I, II, and III. It proposes that each college shall have the right to request persons appointed to counseling function under existing titles (Instr., Lecturer, Asst. Prof, Assoc. Prof, Prof, and HEO series for financial aid counselors), or in the new Counselor Persons appointed to existing titles would continue under present faculty work week schedules and academic year; those in the new Counselor series would be on the 35 hour week, calendar year basis (one month vacation); Persons with tenure as of September 1973, in teaching titles, would have the right to continue on that basis; those in teaching titles on or after August 1, 1973 without tenure or those in the new Counselor title would be appointed at a salary not less than sixteen and twothirds per cent higher than prior salary; provisions are made for Cer-tificate of Continuing Employment (contractual tenure) at a given rank in he Counselor series immediately preceded by 5 years of continuous employ in that rank and title, or in a teaching title.

The BHE proposal would permi colleges, at their options, to transfer all or some (or none) of the 585 nontenured persons on teaching lines to the new Counselor series. New Counselors could also be hired in either line.

(BHE Position) The BHE argues the Panel may not consider whether University employees work 35 hour week, calendar year schedules; that Panel recommendations must be limited to titles in which such employees are employed, salaries, and other privileges and prerequisites for

On the merits of the dispute with PSC, the BHE claims increased enrollmen due to Open Admissions, SEEK and counseling may involve information OFFICERS: t gives the student insight into the learning process and helps him to pursue his academic work more effectively.'

Further arguments by the PSC entail assertions that many Counselors are engaged in academic study on the same level as regular faculty; points to the number of counselors in teaching titles with advanced degrees; some, it claims, teach in graduate or un-dergraduate courses; several train students in peer counseling; many are near completion of study toward Doctorates; it is the responsibility of the party seeking change (BHE) to show the need for change; that the By-Laws of the BHE treat the guidance function on the same basis as the teaching function; and that the BHE proposal seeks to divide faculty by isolating functions. The PSC also claims, under the BHE proposal compromise (college option), 'two counselors working in the same department in the same college could be doing exactly the same work, but could be employed differently at the whim of the college without any rational differentiation;" and it points out that the sixteen and two-thirds per cent salary increase for Counselors in new categories would not constitute full recompense for increased work week and longer work year.

(Panel) The Fact Finders defined the actual proposal of the BHE as "the same job with different working con-ditions; potentially or actually the identical duties, however distributed; and the new pay schedule, at least for some of the levels, to fall below those

They claimed that examination of the entire record of testimony produces the conviction that what began as a fiscal matter (based on pressures from the NYC Budget Bureau), continues to be a fiscal matter.

The Panel concluded that, "if Board's proposal for a new title series

Non-Teaching Workloads: Annual Leave: Staffing

NON-TEACHING WORKLOAD; ANNUAL LEAVE; STAFFING. (PSC) The PSC divides the problem in these areas into three groupings, described by the PSC as follows:

1. Those employees "who are properly in teaching titles": the counselors and librarians, who have professional qualifications and are in constant and continuing direct contact with students as part of the educational process, for whom the PSC seeks the same terms and conditions of employment as members of the teaching faculty.

2. Business Managers, Registrars and Higher Education Officers, for whom the problem is one of work load duties. It states its intention to and for whom the PSC seeks "a more equitable distribution" of the work in these classifications.

Workload not to exceed 35 hours per week, of which 30 shall be assigned and unassigned for professional development. Employee option to work 4 or a 5 day week. 30 hours per week during period from last recitation of Spring Semester until Labor Day. In that period when THI is "excessive" and in non-cin conditioned officers and and in non-air conditioned offices and libraries, employees shall be permitted to leave. Annual leave of 45 days, with 1 additional day per year of service after the 2nd year, to a maximum of 60 days of annual leave.

Establishment of different title of Associate Business Manager. Establishment of additional title of Senior Laboratory Technician, with University-wide Committee of CLT's to formulate job description. Joint Congress-BHE screening committee for use of CLT titles. Evaluations of CLT by staff members in area where assigned and by more than 1 person, including a CLT.

(PSC) The PSC position on Counselors reflects their opposition to the BHE proposal for new Counselor proposal for new Counselor classifications and calls for all faculty lines. They also claim Counselors need a portion of the work week free from student contact hours to handle committee work, research, reports and other administrative duties, thus the call for contractual limitation on student contact hours.

The Librarians proposal again calls for free time to do committee work and research. The PSC points out Librarians are in instructional titles but do not enjoy the same weekly hours or annual leave as other faculty. The PSC further claims the lack of Librarians in some of the levels, to fall below those currently in effect."

According to the Panel, there is no question the Board of Higher Education has a clear right to attempt to negotiate agreement on a longer work week and a longer work year, but they do not recommend that this be done through the removal of Counselors from teaching lines to do exactly the same job, with the same requirements.

They claimed that examination of the levels, to fall below those the "higher" teaching titles is due to lack of opportunity for professional improvement. The PSC also suggests creation of a new title (Library Technical Assistant) to provide a better ratio of professional to non-professional library personnel, "perhaps 1 to 2 or 1 to 2½" rather than the present 1 to 1. The PSC claims its proposed new classification is not intended to impinge on the work of the clerical bargaining on the work of the clerical bargaining unit (Gittleson), but to relieve Librarians of that phase of their work (technical assistance).

PSC proposals on Business Managers, College Laboratory Technicians, Higher Education Officers and Registrars would equalize functionally different job were to be carved out which called for a different their annual leave on an expanding scale based on length of service and to treatment, that might provide a basis scale based on length of service and to for further negotiation on this subject. in non-teaching positions. The thrust of all PSC proposals in these areas centers on establishing the same calendar year for all categories of employees and to create job title levels and pay scales that match the four established faculty ranks of Professor, Assoc. Professor Asst. Professor and Instructors.

(BHE) The Board position on Counselors has already been stated. In connection with work load questions as to Counselors and Librarians, the BHE points out that the PSC has attempted to compare workload of non-teaching faculty with workload of teaching faculty, but that nothing except raw arithmetical estimate librarians has been furnished as to faculty work load, and the PSC has stated frankly that it cannot furnish an estimate of average faculty workload

The BHE suggests the basis for lower number librarians at Associate Professor and Full Professor levels may be a result of the peer judgment spect of the promotional process. The | Fractional line appointments. BHE acknowledges present librarians re performing too many clerical gradually increase the number clerical employees and accomplish through attrition any reduction in the number of librarians necessitated by removal of clerical functions. The BHE further argues the retention of a teaching title need not preclude a different work week or annual leave provision; that the PSC has shown no need for added titles it requests; for any change in work week or work hours; or for proposed changes in the CLT evaluations.

PANEL) The Fact Finders held that he PSC's claimed need for contractual breakdown of working time into fringe benefits (ie. vacation, leave, assigned and unassigned hours does not pension, insurance, et al) eem to the Panel to have been sup-

SIDERATIONS.

(Fiscal Officers) At present, Business Managers at Senior Colleges are paid according to the same salary schedule as Professors. Assistant Bus. Mgrs. are paid at Associate levels. In Community Colleges, the counterpart of Business Manager (under expired LC agreement) is the Fiscal Officer. They are paid at the grade of Asst. Business Managers in Senior Colleges (ie. Assoc. Prof. level).

(PSC) The PSC proposes to upgrade salaries to a parity level with Senior College Business Managers, as well as titles. They further propose creation of an Associate Business Manager title which would bring Business line titles. parallel to the four professorial ranks. Finally, the PSC argues parity of title and salary should come within the life of the Agreement (three years). (BHE) The BHE agrees to the necessity of upgrading Fiscal Officer and offers to increase salaries to a point halfway between the normal progression of their rates and those of the Business Managers by the end of the contract period. The BHE contend current number of Business Managers titles is adequate; and its salary increase proposal is both liberal and adequate in light of the expectancies of personnel originally hired into lower rated positions without anticipation of ever becoming Business Managers. (PANEL) The Panel agreed with the BHE argument against additional title, but held "the difficulties attendant in managing a Community College in the face of open enrollment and diverse funding which have the greatest impact upon such institutions, force us to conclude that parity with Senior College Business Managers should be attained within the life of the Agreement." They recommended parity in compensation as well as title (College Laboratory Technicians) Presently there are three grades of CLT with eight incremental steps within each. PSC proposes the three be combined into one with a single salary schedule of 12 steps starting at $12,100; or, alternatively, that a new grade of Senior Lab Technician be created as a super grade above the present three. It claims the rate for all levels is too low and cites higher rates paid for identical or even less demanding work in elec-tronics and science industries. The PSC also claims discriminatory treatment of CLT as, they argue, various grades often do interchangeable work.

(BHE) The BHE asserts that CLT's are very well paid in comparison to the highest rates paid similar employees in private, the panel agreed.

Adjunct Faculty: Multiple Positions Factional Lines and Other Part-time

Presently there are some 5500 faculty members, excepting Part-time Lecturers, paid on less than a full time basis. These include:

Adjunct staff. Those hired to fill out teaching requirements after a Department has staffed courses with all available full time staff, or who serve short-term replacement for staff on sabbatical ported by proofs or argument. They concluded that uniform provision for paid time toward individual professional development may be desirable but were not persuaded a need exists. The Panel went on to say, 'nor are we able to discern from the argument made for this item what night justify a professionally qualified ndividual being given such time in order to be able to perform the work of that title in a more professional manner.'

The proposal for a contractual commitment as to the point at which a non-air conditioned facility presents an oppressive working condition was not ecommended by the Panel. They held that such a working condition would apply to all employees or to none, as well as students. They also would not recommend student contact ratios for Counselors; additional titles; transfer to professional rank of persons now in HEO series titles which the PSC characterizes as having Counselor functions; placement of librarians on academic calendars. Except for PSC for Adjunct Lecturers, is a more realistic and more rational method of anel also turned down the PSC lemand for an additional category in pensation for all part-time teaching including summer session. As such, an adjunct Professor teaching one-third the normal load of a Full Professor would receive a third of that title's salary, without fringe benefits. The PSC argues proportional payment is the fairest way; that additional costs to the University are only to the extent of the cost for regular full time personnel; that the Board saves additional fringe benefits for such personnel; that such a provision would encourage use of full time staff and discourage exploitation of part-time staff now paid at lower rates. (BHE) The BHE responds that demand for proportional compensation would result in putting most part-time staff out of work and would, in effect, substantially increase earnings of the 2000 or so full time faculty who fill Multiple Positions particularly when coupled with the PSC demand for reduced teaching load. It urges, instead, a $1 per hour per annum increase, compared to compensating all part-time personnel. (PANEL) The Fact Finders do not agree with the PSC proportional pay

"Centralizing tendency argued by the PSC. . .runs counter to basic CUNY policy. . .to revise the 'trend to administrative implosion'." BHE flexibility and the PSC's contention that the Agreement should pre-empt BHE governance goals and protect existing faculty privileges and prerogatives at individual institutions, the Panel stated:

"It is collective bargaining agreement should set forth terms and conditions of employment governing covered personnel or a fixed period of time, without a continuing right to open negotiations on uncovered matters." It is also well established that collective bargaining relationship encompasses more than what is specifically stated in the agreement.' Based on these observations, the Panel concluded that a jointly established grievance procedure be used to deal with negotiated terms as well as those terms not specifically stated in the contract. As such, it would be the responsibility of the grievant to prove that a past practice is in fact a pinding term or condition of emloyment, even though not specifically tated in the contract. They found 'little merit'' to the BHE proposal for a ripper clause and recommended intead continuation of the predecesso contract provisions (see background section for two clauses in previous LC and UFCT contract). The Fact Finders made no commentary on the PSC position on language. DECENTRALIZED CONTROL OF GOVERNANCE. The Panel summarized its interpretation of the par ies' positions on decentralized contro of governance as follows:

The Board desires to protect the autonomy of the college through its By-Laws which grant to each campus staff the right to structure its own Personne and Budget Committee as it wishes Thus, if a campus opts to include students as full voting members (John (ay) it should not be prohibited from doing so by restrictive contract anguage.

The PSC seeks to exclude studen participation in decision-making since, n its view, the PSC alone is the recognized agent for negotiating terms and conditions of employment with

The Fact Finders noted the emphasi on "peer judgement" in matters of faculty job status and concluded "To extend the decision-making authority in nese areas to include students who are not the peers of the faculty or the staff would, we believe, be inappropriate to the maintenance of the concept of peer judgement endorsed by both parties.' They further concluded that there was no evidence of student voting at any campus beyond John Jay, and that it would not be desirable to disturb the existing arrangement, but that the student voting arrangement not be extended to other campuses.

In an effort to assure maximum autonomy to each of its institutions, the BHE innovated a program whereby 'each constituent unit was authorized to develop its own governance plan and charter, subject to approval of the BHE." Recognizing that such gover-Recognizing that such governance plans might vary from the Board's By-Laws, several articles were adopted with release clauses such as

In addition to the "language" dispute, the BHE: objected to freezing existing practices; claimed it could not and would not freeze any local prac tices of which it was entirely unaware: that continuation of any existing practice to which the Board would commit itself would require an explicit description thereof in the contract itself: challenged document specifications of supposedly "existing" practices the PSC wants to preserve and new practices it supports as infringing on the Board's right to govern and therefore beyond its statutory obligation to negotiate; the Board asserts the centralizing tendency urged by the PSC through University-wide overnance controls counters basic CUNY policy to revise the "trend to administrative implosion" decentralization; it argues student participation in college governance is among non-mandatory subjects of bargaining and holds that, even it bargainable, student voting should be a matter of local option and cannot be precluded by, or subject to, control by University-wide Agreement.

(PANEL) The Fact Finders concluded that a great deal of argument over specific contract language was masking substantial philosophical differences between the parties. They isolated what they considered two primary issues: "changing existing practices" and "decentralizing control of governance.

Counselors

(BKGRND) According to the Panel, there is basic disagreement between BHE and PSC regarding the background and development of the CUNY Counselor program. The BHE maintains Counselors were brought in under the aegis of teaching categories due to a lack of public acceptance of the Counselor function at the time, and that teaching faculty originally opposed the move due to what they considered a de facto reduction of teaching budget and abuse of teaching titles. The PSC claims the hiring of Counselors evolved from the teaching relationship and 'was and is' closely related to teaching functions.

The Panel profiles a 1970 chronology of conflict between the Board of Higher Education, City Budget Bureau and the two unions then representing faculty The argument centered over whether college Presidents would have the option to hire Counselors under teaching lines or Higher Education Officer (HEO) lines. The major difference in the two is length of work week and work year. An HEO works a twelve month year with one month vacation and 35 hour week. Regular faculty enjoy a nine month year, often less than a 35 hour week, and extra pay should they work summers. The Panel's chronology would suggest it was under pressure from the Bureau of

While the original intent was to enable transfer of all untenured employees into a calendar year schedule t was as an accommodation to the PSC that the proposal for "college option" was developed. pace and in his own way. Though in-dividual courses differ, the basic structure of a PSI class contains

1. Specific objectives are laid out for a student in a comprehensive course guide given to him during an initial meeting of the entire class. The guide informs the student what textbooks he will be required to study, what basic concepts he is to master, and how he is

2. The student is allowed to proceed at his own pace. The original Keller concept allowed the student to complete the course requirements as quickly or as slowly as he desired, without reference to quarter, semester, trimester or other time requirements.

When the course was completed, the student could move on to something else. Later modifications have been utilized in PSI to better conform it to the traditional time frame of the collegiate year. Today, most PSI students are encouraged to complete a course within the basic time structure of the college. Incompletes, however, are often given liberally, allowing the units. Most PSI courses are divided into 15 to 30 units of information (some of these are review units). After studying each unit the student demonstrates his mastery by taking a written or oral quiz, usually administered by a proctor, or by writing a brief on the subject, or by some other activity that can be quickly evaluated and discussed with him. If the student scores perfectly, he may advance to the next unit.

If he does not, he is counselled by a proctor or the professor, and he studies further material on the subject unit. In most PSI courses the student may retake the unit examination as often as he desires without penalty. Once he scores perfectly, he moves on to the next unit.

The purpose of PSI is to allow the student to pace himself, and then to reinforce him by allowing him to move to the next unit when he demonstrates mastery. Rather than receiving a "C" for exhibiting partial knowledge of a subject, the student knows that when he passes a unit he has mastered it. He knows a little bit well, rather than knowing a lot poorly.

Describing the PSI classroom as a sort of Grand Central Station, without the OTB windows, the Hoffer article describes the role of the faculty member as that of a course manager, rather than mouthpiece. It also cites one instance where student proctors have become a mainstay of the PSI program.

Use of proctors

Dr. J. Gilmour Sherman, one of the original "Keller Four," is now instructor of psychology at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. One of his recent innovations in PSI has been the use of students as proctors. Many PSI instructors utilize teaching assistants who are paid for their ser vices either in cash or academic credit. This adds to the cost of the course, and may make it less attractive to college management.

In the beginning of Dr. Sherman's introductory psychology course he uses the services of students who completed the course the previous term. But within three weeks he tries to persuade the faster students to begin proctoring the slower ones. A student who has recently completed the first six units of formation thus becomes an adviso for those units. The material is fresh and exciting to him, and he has a real incentive to keep his own course work moving, lest he fall back into step with the very students he is proctoring. This use of students to help teach their own course has led to some exciting teaching experiences, Sherman says.

To date, there are apparently few if any detractors of the Keller Plan, or at least so the use factors and educational media reports would suggest. Besides low cost to college administrations interest in the individualized approach by faculty, and the many well-documented limitations of the lecture system, the Keller approach gets results. According to a report by three American Psychological Association members, PSI not only works, but works impartially for all students.

They reported, in the December issue of the Journal of College Science Teaching, that students have better recall five weeks after a PSI administered course than those who took the course in the traditional method. They also point out that the in-dividualized approach gives the weaker student the necessary structure to improve study skills and continual success serves as a motivator.

Those interested in more information on the Keller Plan can subscribe to the PSI newsletter put out by Dr. J Gilmour Sherman. It has more than 2.000 subscribers and can be subscribed to through the Psychology Department, Georgetown University, Washington, D.C. 20007. Donations of $2 or $3 are solicited.

SALARY. Retention of the present increments, which average 4.7 per cent and average increases of 3.3 per cent, 4.0 per cent and 4.4 per cent in CUNY salaries for the three years covered.

Agreements on entry levels provide increases across-the-board for every rank: $600 in the first year (71-72), $750 in the coming year, and $850 in 1974-75. The previous minimum entry salary of $12,700 will go to $13,450, while the maximum range will go from $31,275 to $33,475 by 1975. These figures include annual increments by which personnel are rewarded for service and experience. Board of Higher Education negotiators, according to the union statement, had attempted to abolish the increment system since talks began in 1972.

CLASS SIZE CLASS SIZE. What it terms, "much more significant" than salary hikes are provisions aimed at improving the quality of education at the 19-campus niversity: recommended class size limits of 15 students in remedial courses and 25 freshman English courses, and recommended workload imits at levels prevalent in 1971-72, for both classroom and non-classroom staffs." > As to the "age" reference, the BHE sees no justification for more extensive protection than that provided by statute.

(PSC) The PSC acknowledges that inclusion of the word "hire" provides duplicate remedy, but sees nothing objectionable in choice of forum or duplicate forums. It points out that "employees" as in the National Labor Relations Act, includes "applicants for informed from the very beginning that they may receive an A by completing employment" and that statutory protection against discrimination in employment has been found to apply to persons who have not yet secured employment. On the "age" question, the PSC claims that statutory protections are generally limited to ages between 40 and 65 and does not cover those who are "too young" or "too old." It seeks to provide more extensive protection than that afforded by statute. (PANEL) The Fact Finders answered the Board's challenge to the bargaining right of PSC on the "hiring" reference with the claim that there is "a substantial difference between proposals for new contract provisions and proposals for removal or modification of provisions which were contained in both of the prior agreements (with LC and UFCT).

They further stated that the PSC has legitimate concern with the nondiscriminatory nature of hiring because those hired as part of a discriminatory practice become part of the bargaining unit. Finally, they point to the fact that there is no history of grievances that suggest inclusion of applicants for employment under the contract has proved an excessive administrative burden or cost on the BHE or PSC; and that there is no history of excess zeal on the part of the PSC to abuse its inclusion

The Panel does, however, see justification for modification of the "age" reference in the contract. It argues there could be valid reasons for following statutory limits, though it does not enumerate. As to the concern of the PSC with the "too young, too old" problem of statutory protection, the Panel advises that specific extension or retention of statutory limits on age should be made via negotiated settlement between the parties.

The the Faculty Council, acting on a Medical Technology program, ac-recommendation from Anne Merlino, cording to Merlino, provides an exrecommendation from Anne Merlino, Chairperson of the Biology Depart-ment, voted to drop the hospital internship requirement from the Medical Technology Curriculum.

Basing her request on the increased difficulty of finding hospitals in the area to place student interns, Merlino further argued that the majority of students in the curriculum do not need the internship requirement as they transfer to four year colleges for furdeterminations being made on a University-wide "budget line" basis. In essence, it agreed that promotions up to 900 per year would not be subject to budgetary considerations in determining approval or disapproval of promotions. It also upheld the 30-30-30-

The PSC rejected the Board proposal and answered with its own. Essentially, it remains the same with two exceptions: that the determinant of distribution be "persons in rank" rather than budget lines; and that Instructors and Lecturers promoted to Professorial titles not be included in the 900 per year promotion figures. In effect, the PSC proposal would force the BHE to hire outside the University in the higher levels to reach the contract figures; while its regular promotions would not be considered part of the Approximately 175 veterans will be enrolled in the program during the coming academic year, according to Wayne Purnell, director of the SICC project. Two 12-week cycles are cheduled.

The first two cycles conducted under the program, during the academic year just ended, saw more than 130 veterans graduate with most of them becoming matriculated students. Another 100 are currently enrolled in the summer cycle; those successfully completing their studies will enter the college in September, as matriculated undergraduates.

SICC's Veterans' Scholar Program was set up as a successor operation to the college's project at Fort Dix, where SICC conducted a pre-college program which pioneered in remedial and preparatory work for Viet Nam returnees who otherwise would have been ineligible for college entry. An advisory committee of community and veterans' leaders was set up by the college to review progress of the project and assist in recruiting veterans for the program.

Recommending the tentative contract for ratification, PSC President Belle Zeller predicted that "by rising above the bread-and-butter issues and focusing on educational and professional concerns, this contract is very likely to set the pace for faculty unionism throughout the country."

the 30-30-30-10 based on "bodies" to prove that such an approach would mean massive non-reappointments in the lower ranks and would still not fill the desired ratio. Finally, it reiterates its opposition to

ratios based on anything but budget lines and the PSC proposal to merge the Lecturer and Instructor ranks. (PANEL) The Fact Finders concurred with the proposed ratio as an objective for attainment within the three year life of the proposed Agreement. They also concur, however, with the BHE position on all counts except their right to consider the issue.

The Panel argues that extensive outside hiring in the higher ranks will foreclose promotion opportunity to the lower ranks. They also oppose the PSC promotion proposals for elimination of requirements and automatic upgrades as tending to dilute the authority and professional responsibility of those currently charged with recommending and approving promotions (in effect, it would undercut peer judgment as a promotion criteria); and claim such a plan would discriminate against those who earlier had received promotion based on traditional criteria.

They endorsed the 900 promotions per year quota (exempt from budgetary restriction) and leave it to the parties to resolve "how" promotions will be applied amongst the ranks.

Finally, they opposed the merge of the Instructor and Lecturer titles arguing, "the two classifications have different requirements and, indeed, different functions, with the continuation of both being to the benefit of the University and its faculty.' (ED NOTE: Part II of the Fact Finder Report review will cover Facilities and Services; Salaries; Tenure and Job Appointment, Security; pointment, Presidential Reasons, Removal and Suspension, Grievance and Arbitration Procedures; and

While the parliamentary maneuvers are now a pre-cathartic memory of intense political combat, that combat's relationship to "in loco parentis" (a Latimized name for the several centuries old notion that a college is a moral, as well as educational guardian to its students) and the "Skinner box" (the now classic example of behaviour modification theory) seems to hold the "morality," or lack thereof, that underlined the intensity of both voting blocks' positions.

To evaluate the dynamic of what occurred in the meetings using the notions of "in loco parentis" and the 'Skinner box," it is important to clarify what is meant by them.

For purposes of its expression in the meetings, it would seem "in loco parentis" implies a basic distrust on the part of some members of the Administration-Faculty block toward providing an unchecked mechanism of government to student control.

It is perhaps one of the major victories and losses of the Student block that they clearly recognized the tendency toward guardianship, and its implied condescensions, on the part of various opposition members; but failed to ferret out and deal with the underlying apprehensions.

In confronting the basic distrust that guardianship implies, the students won the critical vote of Martin Black for the Association membership majority. Perhaps more important, they would later confound the chair, in the person of Stamos Zades, with a moral dilemma that would finally threaten the Administration-Faculty block with a moral lead to an amonable unity...and lead to an amenable compromise.

What the Student block failed to recognize, was the notion of "freedom within a system" that seems to be expressed in terms of the professed "Skinner box" planners on the second floor of "A" building—a "reward" system with college government as the system with college government as the einforcer.

In a sense, the dynamics of the "box" all members of the Association are in was not accounted for in the Student strategy. Robert's Rules in hand, they were well prepared to use a moral-parliamentary "box" strategy on the opposition members who would reflect or react to the "in loco parentis" assumptions. . but were ill-prepared to challenge the legal box that the Adchallenge the legal box that the Administration representative would (c) states: "Where more than one claim surrounds the Association itself.

as the indigenous representatives of a colonial government. For this, they were well equipped. They were illequipped to challenge the "mother" collected from the members of each BHE by-laws.

With each recess for caucus, Student epresentatives would prepare to pound the integrity of the members who doubted their ability, as a student political block, to provide stability to the Association. It was their only weapon. They were simply not equipped to effectively challenge the legalisms of BHE Articles XV and XI thrown at them by Loperena. Their strength was in the fact that they knew

BHE articles in hand, he orchestrated his block in caucus and remained silent through reacts of the certain reserving. through most of the actual meeting time. His arguments were simple. . .as interpreted in the two Articles, the President of the College is ultimately responsible for the actions of the Association. As such, he must have a voice in the activities on the

Never answered was the question of in what way a student majority on the Association denied the President a voice, especially in light of the fact that he has a veto power over Association decisions and approved power over its By-Laws. Nor was the question of how the Administration interpretation of the Articles in question was arrived at. When queried on the subject, Loperena would only point to the by-law sections claiming, "it's right here;" state that the students should form a separate Student Union if they want full control; and allude to the necessity for "powe with responsibility."

Following are the by-law sections:

(b) Any member may withdraw from the Association by presenting to the Secretary a written resignation, which shall be presented to the Board of Directors by the Secretary at the next meeting thereof following receipt of such resignation shall be effective upon its acceptance by the Board of Direc-

(c) Any member may be suspended for a period or expelled for cause, such as violation of any of the by-laws of rules of the Association. Such suspension and the period thereof, or expulsion, shall be imposed only by the unanimous vote of the full membership of the Board of Directors, with the exception of the vote of the person proposed for suspension or expulsion, if he is a member of the Board of Directors. At least fifteen days before a vote may be taken for the suspension or expulsion of a member a statement of the charges against him and a notice of the time when and place where the Board of Directors propose to take action must be sent to such member by registered mail at his last recorded address; such member shall be given an opportunity to present a defense at the time and place mentioned in the aforesaid notice. Such expulsion or suspension shall be effective immediately upon the recording of the required affirmative vote thereon by the Board of Directors.

Section 3. Vacancies. Upon the failure of a person occupying one of the positions specified in Section I of Article II hereof to accept membership or. in the event of the death, resignation or other failure of a member to continue membership, a majority of the remaining members, though less than a quorum, may fill the vacancy thereby created by electing a new member; provided, however, that the new member must be a representative of the same group (administration, faculty alumni or student body) as the member who failed to qualify, accept membership or whose membership terminated. A person so elected to fill a vacancy shall serve until his successor qualifies by occupying the applicable position specified in Section I of Article II hereof and by duly advising the Secretary of his acceptance of membership. Section 4. Effect of Termination or of Suspension. The rights of any person as a member of this Association, including his right to vote, shall cease immediately upon his termination of membership, or upon his suspension of membership for the period of suspension. Section 5. Voting Right.

Each member shall have one vote only at a meeting of the Association.

ARTICLE III Meeting of Members Section I. Annual Meetings.

Article XI Section 11.3 of the Board Bylaws, in the description of the President's responsibilities, states the ollowing:

"The president, with respect to his educational unit shall:

 a) Have the affirmative responsibility of conserving and enhancing the educational standards of the college under his jurisdiction.

b) Be an advisor and executive agent of the Board and of his respective College Committee and have the immediate supervision with full discretionary power to carry into effect he bylaws, resolutions and policies of the Board, the lawful resolutions of any of its committees, and the policies, programs and lawful resolutions of the several faculties.

c) Exercise general superintendence over the concerns, officers, employees and students of his college.

Article XV further defines the responsibility of the President and the College as follows: Section 15.10 Paragraph (a) reads in part: "A College Association shall be considered approved for purposes of this Section if (1) its charter and by laws are approved by the President and the considered approved to the considered ap by the President and filed with the Secretary of the Board of Higher Education," Section 15.10 paragraph appropriately elected Student Government exists, the College or Student Put simply, the Students were after a Government exists, the College or 'coup d'etat' over what might be seen College Association shall allocate the country. described by the Administration representative as "power section 15.11 paragraph (a) reads: with responsibility" and buttressed by "The College President shall be "The College President shall be responsible for the full disclosure to each of the Student Governments of the College of all financial information with respect to Student Activity Fees.

In addition, in the absence of specification, paragraph (e) of the same section authorizes the President to establish a Student Activity Fee Review Committee in consultation with the various Student Governments.

The Student Union offer was contained as an alternative to the compromise offered as a minority report by Loperena. In essence, the compromise gave students none of the goals they outlined...no majority on the Association or the Board of Directors and still retaining Alumni Association membership on the Board.

Accusing the students of "oligar-chical" leadership and offering the Student Union approach where they might provide their own space and hire their own staff, the Union idea seemed clearly a threat. This is especially the case in light of the fact that one of the legal claims later brought out was the college's role as a collector of fees for the Association. An independent Student Union would apparently have to collect its own fees.

With each Administration-Faculty caucus, Loperena would indicate whatever "give" there might be in the composition of Association and Board. This tendency increased sharply with each Student Block maneuver. Martin Black, particularly, would not bend on refusing to support "in loco parentis' based arguments with his block Stamos Zades, at the Chair, could not out-maneuver the Students on a parliamentary basis. . . the only recourse was the legal argument.

Ironically, the more successful the Student block was at driving the contradictions of Zades' and Black's positions into a "box," the more they were driven into the Administration's legal "box." And, clearly, the legal relationship of the President to the Association was the only non-negotiable weapon of the Administration-Faculty

It was perhaps a sense of guardianship that led Stamos Zades to pursue the Student block following their decision to stage a walk-out in protest of his decision from the Chair to, as one observer put it, "overrule Robert's Rules and the English language."

The meeting previous, the Student block had attempted to adjourn with no change in the present by-laws. The point of the move was to force the opposition to recognize that the students were, in fact, compromising in even discussing a change in the previous by-law section covering elections to the Board of Directors.

Since each side had an equal number of votes, neither could pass a motion. ..but either side could block

Zimmerman Pulls Pinky

Stanley Zimmerman, renowned center-fielder for Leftfield—the softball team of SICC's Mayday Committee, was injured in a practice session at the Student Government's Graduation Picnic. According to latest Medical reports, Zimmerman, with a broken tendon in his leg and a pulled pinky finger, may be out of action for the remainder of the season.

The leg injury occurred when the popular slugger slammed a clean base hit to the deep infield. Witnesses attributed the accident to an apparent element of right-wing deviationism in the baseball bat, which bounced to the right after being dropped, striking Zimmerman in the leg.

Regarding the finger injury, little information is available. Charlie Isaacs, temporary coach of the team, has long expressed distrust of pinky fingers. Since the injury, he has instructed all Leftfielders to keep a close eye on such fingers for possible petty bourgeois tendencies.

4. Present policies and practices related to educational matters such as admissions and the creation of new curriculums should be reviewed. Means must be found of including the entire community in periodic examinations of such matters.

1. Despite the efforts of the Board to increase the participation of all groups in University governance, merous factors have continued the pressure for increased centralization of control, policy and operation of the University. This increased tendency toward centralization has become a counterforce to the individual college's ability to operate autonomously and has increasingly slowed the ability of the University to react calmly, sensibly, and in a forward-looking way.

The advent of collective negotiations, under the Taylor Act, has been a noteworthy legal as well as practical, ressure toward centralization of University responsibilities. Under the law, the collective negotiating agents have exercised their right to deal with the University as a whole. The resulting contracts and structures have tended to make the office of the Chancellor the obvious direct court of appeals. Application of the contracts has also tended to impose uniform and rigid personnel practices across the entire University.

The funding agencies and their bureaus within the City, State and Federal Governments have made it in creasingly clear that they no longer propose to deal with 20 separate units when they have available to them he choice of dealing only with the office of the Chancellor on behalf of all the units.

The expanding capital facilities program is vital to the growth and well-being of the University and all of its units. It is also true that the law which provides for the financing of this program, as well as the natural characteristics of capital programs, in terms of overall priorities and comparability of programs again tends to result in centralization of authority

The State laws requiring University Master Plans and internal coordination of academic programs also have increased the pressures toward centralized policy making and control overrule the Chair. Students argued that, besides the fact that the ruling in favor of Allen's protest was probably illegal, there had een no formal introduction of a twothirds vote to overrule. They also held there had been many more occasions when the precedent for simple majority was used that came earlier than the Chair's example.

The Students further cited Robert's Rules which calls for simple majority and asked if, should they choose to challenge the two-thirds rule, they would need a simple majority. The Chair ruled they would need a two-thirds vote to overrule the Chair's decision to implement a two-thirds

It was at that point the students walked out. When Zades pursued them, ne was confronted by an outraged Leona Sanders, President of DAy Session Student Government. She told nim frankly that confidence in an mpartial chairman was broken.

Just as the legal arguments of the administration had been the inflexible cool of the one side, the action of the Chair had pushed the Student block to the point of developing legal arguments of their own. Until that time, the "give had primarily, though grudgingly, come from the Student block.

Sanders had deftly isolated the Chairman from the man on a moral point. The Chairman voted with his block but had carefully refrained from an assertive definition of his position He had opposed the "blocks" sides. Zades was trapped by the challenge to his personal integrity.

The final compromise is reflected in the revised by-laws, now waiting final approval on the President's desk. The Students will retain a majority on the Association; the Alumni Association no longer sits on the Board of Directors: and the Students have blocking power (equal votes) on the Board of Directors with the Chairman, in gentleman's agreement, giving up any vote on the

Considering the limited arsenal at their disposal, the students were adroit statesmen and extremely hard bargainers. Without going to extremes, they pushed the other side to extremes Using only an ethical edge and Robert's Rules, they hammered out a veto power in the Association and Board memberships and forced the Alumni off the

The Administration-Faculty block, excluding the President's office, lost, as a block, any credence to implied or explicit "in loco parentis" as a serious factor in Association governance. Particularly Zades and Black, and perhaps Surace, were in some ways the victims of change. Force fed into a more equal human dimension with the students, their contradictory values and decisions were made target by one side and shot at by the other. Yet they were the key people in development of the compromise. Without the conflicts of their own values there would have been no initial student majority on the Association nor would there have been the final concessions on the Alumni or Board of Directors composition.

The President's office is undoubtedly the only clear winner. Conceding that a game shall be played with a certain composition over another can never be a loss as long as one holds the game board. In actuality, the President compromised nothing. As pointed out earlier, there was never any real challenge to the legitimacy of his need to control, via veto power, the Association's actions.

However, conceding nothing in such a drawn out struggle would hardly merit the time and effort put into it. It would seem the "Skinner box" has won. It is the avowed goal of the President to have an active student government. A sub-governmental unit such as the Association is the ideal training ground. As Martin Black pointed out at one of the sessions, "one can pay more and learn much less at most graduate

No doubt, as an astute political ac tivist, Birenbaum is also well aware of the endless stream of "systems" that allow or disallow certain freedoms. The Student block is now aware of at least four. . .their own, the Association's, the college as an administrative entity and the Board of Higher Education's. Perhaps more important, they have seen exercised the ways in which one can pivot around another.

Finally, if one were to take a more cynical view, the President has managed to exercise effective control over at least one political unit within the college without having to take responsibility for that exercise Ironically, one could claim only th President's office has exem "power without responsibility."

BHE Policy Statement

Last but by no means least of all the pressures are those that emanate from the growth of discontent in the student body, the rising aspirations of the minority communities, the student communities' demands for control of their own destinies, and the experiences of the public with the Board of Education. All these groups in times of crisis appear to be convinced that they must seek their victories at the office of the Board of Highe Education and not on the college campuses.

This increasing centralization of power and functional responsibility has literally overleaded the capacities of the members of the Board of Higher Education to discharge their responsibilities. The demands made on poard members in terms of time as well as emotional resources are unconscionable and in fact are damaging to their ability to exercise their responsibilities in terms of problems at a policy making level. To this must be added the observation that presidential authority has been increasingly limited by the exercise of faculty prerogatives in personnel matters, in educational policy, as well as in the management of departmental operations. The limitations on presidential authority at the departmental chairman's level tend to restrict the presidential scope of activity at that level. In the same sense the active involvement of the Board in college business tends to limit the president's flexibility. Only recently the University has at last attained a reasonable degree of budgetary flexibility. It is now possible for the president to break away from the severe limitations of prior budgetary rigidity and make use of this flexibility substantially to improve internal college management and bring about academic reform and innovation that had not herefofore been possible. In practice, this tool can only be effective if academic quality management can be substantially improved down to and through the departmental level.

It is proposed that this trend to administrative implosion be reversed by a reestablishment and an enhan cement of presidential responsibility and authority in connection with matters concerning his college. This should be accompanied by a parallel reemphasis on the responsibilities of the faculty to govern themselves with respect to appointments, promotions, tenure and the academic program. The faculty's responsibility for attention to duty, attention to teaching responsibilities, and limitation of outside involvements, as well as a reexamination of the department chairman's responsibility to the president as well as to his department colleagues, all are matters that are now being reexamined by the University Faculty Senate. The Board, through its Committee on Governance will continue to seek ways of increasing decentralization at all levels of

It is, however, very clear now that in the absence of direct presidential management authority at the department level the present college, divisional and departmental operating procedures must be altered to encourage the development of academic excellence through faculty direction

The chairman, as a faculty member of a given department, must have the confidence of the department members in order to provide academic leadership within the particular

The chairman, as a faculty member of a given department, must have the confidence of the department members in order to provide academic leadership within the particular discipline in addition to his respon sibility for the management of the department. This confidence can best be assured by continuing the practice of periodically electing chairmen by and from the faculty of the department. This must, however, be coupled with the clear presidential authority to appoint a department chairman at any time when the best interests of the college necessitates such action. Such authority necessarily includes the power of removal where necessary. Neither of these actions would be undertaken without prior consultation with the faculty of the involved. Such actions are subject to the approval of the Board of Higher Education.

While the primary responsibility for the development and preservation of academic excellence is located in the faculty the ultimate responsibility rests with the president who is directly responsible to the Board. While this may be taken for granted, the bylaws of the Board should state explicitly to the college community that the president shall have the affirmative responsibility of conserving and enhancing the educational standard excellence of the college under his jurisdiction. Such responsibility shall include but no be limited to the duty to insure that his recommendations for the appointment, promotion and the granting of tenure are in accord with the immediate and long range interests of the college and that such reco ations contribute to the improvement of the academic excellence of the college.

In addition to improving the faculties' ability to uphold the quality of the academic program, which is treated in greater detail below, and the restatement of presidential responsibility in this area, the reenforcement of general presidential authority would require only minor changes in the Board's existing bylaws

FIRST, the bylaws should be amended to eliminate the presently existing college committees of the Board and the Board should resolve itself to function through its presently existing functional committees, with the addition of new committees as the need arises. This will make it clear that the Board will deal on a functional basis with those matters of policy and principle that relate to all of the units of the University. Routine items concerning the internal operations of the individual colleges would be submitted directly to the Board rather than through the college committees. The technical screening of these matters will be handled by the Chan cellor's office. The Board's policy agenda will then be limited to those matters of University-wide policy interest. It is intended that this procedure will clearly indicate to all involved that the president has the achority and responsibility for all college affairs and that local matters will be administered and settled at the campus level within the framework of established Board policy.

The Chairman of the Board shall appoint a member of the Board to serve as liaison with each college. Appointments shall be made annually on a rotating basis.

The emphasis of Board operations will be directed to the monitoring and developing of University-wide policy in functional areas through committees named to deal with specific areas.

All special and functional committees of the Board will have student and faculty representation with non voting status. The members will be designated by the University Faculty Senate and the University Studen

SECOND, the bylaws should be amended to provide for the establishment of a second Vice-Chairman who will be included as a member of the Executive Committee, in order to deal with the press of business and properly to divide the workload of the functional committees as well as to make it possible for the Board Chairman to discharge his responsibilities with a reasonable expenditure of time. It is anticipated that with the addition of a second Vice-Chairman, it will be practical for the Chairman to be active or be represented or THIRD, there is an additional element in this new structure that is vital to the preservation of the whole under the operation of college and presidential autonomy. For the Board to function properly, the Chancellor, its chief officer, will be vested with the authority to manage the agenda and to provide appropriate documentation. All agenda items must have been considered and approved by a committee of the Board or the Chancellor. Many items, including the routine Chancellor's Report, will appear as recommendations of the President approved by the Chancellor.

The Chancellor, at the University level, should have available a mechanism to provide, from as broad a base as possible, the opinions and recommendations of the University's general public. The Ad Hoc Committee for the City University now provides this input on an informal basis as the need arises. It is now recommended that the Ad Hoc Committee be reconstituted as the University lay advisory council with membership designated by the organizations now represented on the Ad Hoc Committee, with the exception of the student faculty and alumni groups for whom formal representation has been provided at other points in the University

To ensure that the president has available to him the widest range of views and expertise in the co sideration of college policy formulation, each president may establish an advisory council or councils. If the president so desires, the membership of the advisory council or councils may include a member of the Boar

Members of the college advisory councils are to be appointed by the Board of Higher Education as follow where there is organizational representation the organization will designate its representatives; represen tatives from the surrounding geographical area will be nominated by the president and representatives from the City at large will be nominated by the Board of Higher Education. Students and faculty are not to be in cluded on the councils since these groups should be fully represented through the formal internal college structure.

11. As an additional means of realizing the aims expressed in its statement of May 5, 1969, the Board at the time indicated that it would ".... view with favor as a substitute for those sections of Article VIII (Organization and Duties of the Faculty) and Article IX (Organization and Duties of Faculty Departments and other related sections of the Bylaws, which relate to the internal governance of the colleges and membership on any and all college committees, a new set of Bylaws for any unit of the University which wishes to

While a good deal of movement has been made toward reform of local governance, the process has been slo college governance. These matters have been the focus of attention of the University Student Senate, the University Faculty Senate, the Administrative Council, the Board's Committee on Law and the Board itself. This attention, however, has not produced lasting solutions to the problems raised. There has clearly been no lack of concern or effort in this area. The Board is well aware that the preparation for open admissions as well as student disruptions have been major factors in absorbing the focus of attention at the college level.

The Board at this time feels constrained to relterate the closing paragraphs of its May 5, 1969 statement. If the City University is to function effectively, channels of communication must always be available for the peaceful and reasoned discussion and decision of all problems which affect the educational process. At the same time, violent disruption of the activities of the City University and its component colleges must not continue. The Board notes the recent statement by the American Council on

If universities will not govern themselves, they will be governed by others. This elementary reality is increasingly becoming understood by all components of the university community.

The Board reiterates the pledge in its 1968 Master Plan that both students and faculty should participate in the decision making process at all units of the City University. The Board pledges its best efforts to improve, and to increase the scope and effectiveness of such participation.

The Board has a paramount duty both to the academic community and to the people of this City to use its best efforts to ensure that the orderly working of the University shall continue. We ask the cooperation of the academic community and of all the people of this City to help us achieve this end.

With the intention of exercising its responsibility to the University community and the people of this City, the Board now reaffirms its commitment to achieve solutions to the four problems set out in its statement of May i, 1969, and to that end, the Board issues the following statements and guidelines for college governance to guide the colleges in the development of new governance structures and to resolve some of the existing roblems with respect to college governance. Concurrent with the adoption of this statement, the Chairman o the Board is directed to appoint a Committee on Governance. The Committee on Governance will be charged with the responsibility of reporting to the Board, after consultation with members of the University com munity, on the progress made toward the solution of governance problems within the University and recommendations for amendments to this statement. In addition, the Committee will present to the Board at such time as may be appropriate a comprehensive report on the status of governance at the City University and recommendations for future action in this area.

THE UNIVERSITY

(a) The size and complexity of the university make it imperative that the focus of decision-making be moved loser to the colleges. At the same time it must be possible for all sectors of the university community to participate in decisions appropriately reached at the university level, and for the Board of Higher Education o exercise its overall responsibility while encouraging variations in local governance

There are, in fact, two kinds of representation at the university level: first, the representation of constituer nterests, now appropriately handled through the University Student Senate and the University Faculty senate; second, the representation of individual colleges and the policies and practices which they have dopted through their own procedures of governance under established university regulations. These two patterns of representation do not lend themselves easily to combined representation on a basis of numerica quality. Moreover, the adequate representation of college needs and views at the university level can be hieved only through an organization in which each college is represented.

For this reason, some organization made up of the principal officers of the colleges, the presidents, appears dispensable. The Administrative Council, as it is now constituted and organized, has proven to be unwieldy t is, therefore, recommended that the Administrative Council be replaced by a Council of Presidents, cor sisting of the college presidents, with the chancellor as chairman and the deputy chancellor as an ex-officio ember. (Other members of the central staff should be available during the regular meetings of the council as heir knowledge, expertise and advice are needed).

To facilitate the development of joint positions on matters of university policy, the Council of Presidents hould elect an executive committee to meet periodically with the executive committees of the University aculty Senate and the University Student Senate on matters of mutual concern. The joint executive com ittees would be empowered to establish joint functional committees if and when appropriate.

(b) In an effort to ensure that present policies and practices related to educational and management mat ers within the colleges and the University are satisfactorily meeting the needs of the University community, nd to involve the entire community in periodic evaluations of such matters, the Chancellor is directed to rovide for a performance audit of each college and of the central administration. Such audit is to be per ormed every five years by a panel chosen by the Board of Higher Education from outside the University. The anel shall be directed to review all aspects of the colleges' operation and to consult with students, faculty and dministrators of the college under review. The report of the audit shall be widely distributed to all members of the college community and the Board and reviewed by the Council of Presidents which shall make

The statements which follow are designed to guide the colleges in the development of new governance

(a) The focus of major decision-making within the University is properly at the college level. Such decision hould not be interfered with by the University administration except where a college decision may affect other college or the University as a whole. Such decisions should not be altered by the Board, except where by virtue of its responsibility to the University community and the general community, action is deeme ecessary to protect the legitimate interest of groups or individuals within the college community.

To ensure the integrity of college-level decision-making, new processes for communication and decision naking, which permit each group of participants to feel that it can influence the institution as a matter of righ and responsibility must be established. Each college should be free to create its own governance structure to enable it to create a climate in which rationality can be focused upon the issues, which its members consider to

The college community is composed of three basic elements, i.e., students, the primary reason for the ollege's existence; faculty, the primary means of the development, preservation and transmission of nowledge; and the administration, which in addition to providing managerial and technical services, exists provide leadership to the students, faculty and the college community as a unit.

In addition to these three groups, there exist others that influence and are influenced by the institution and should be provided with a means of participation in the process of decision-making. These include the mem pers of the general public of the City; the alumni of the college; and the members of the clerical, custodial and rofessional administrative staffs. College governance structures should include formal means of com nunication with these groups and provide for participation in the making of decisions which can reasonably be

(b) The President: In the context of this section, the term President includes the members of the college idministration who are directly responsible to him and are appointed by him. The selection of a President to serve an individual college must be made by the Board of Higher Education as an exercise of its responsibility or the operation of the University. However, representatives of the college community will serve with th Board's search committee and an appointment will ordinarily be made by the Board only upon the recom mendation of the search committee and the Chancellor.

The primary responsibility of the President is the conserving and enhancing of the educational program of he college under his jurisdiction and the providing of leadership to the college community for the purpose of chieving these ends. To carry out these responsibilities as the executive officer of the college, the Presiden has the final responsibility and authority for decisions in the following areas: the quality of the faculty and academic leadership; preparation of the college budget and allocation of monies within the college, preparation and implementation of the college Master Plan; general management of the clerical, custodia and professional administrative staffs, the maintenance of order and the disciplining of members of the college community whose conduct threatens that order; and the general administration of the college in such a vay as to meet the needs of the students and faculty and resolve disputes which may arise within the college ommunity. While the President must hold the final responsibility ^{and} authority in these areas, the exercise of this authority should be governed by the following principles:

i) The final responsibility for development of the faculty must lie with the chief academic officer, the President. To this end, the President has the affirmative responsibility for passing on all faculty personnel actions, and in the case of the granting of tenure, the President should rely on the judgment of experts in the various disciplines to aid him in making a final decision. In cases of controversial, early, or other special enure decisions, consultation with faculty members or other qualified persons within or outside the City While a good deal of movement has been made formed persons within or outside the City and tedious. During the past year, numerous problems and disputes have arisen concerning University and University may be appropriate. Such consultation should be undertaken together with, or in agreement with, an appropriate elected faculty body-departmental divisional or college wide-within the college or University > ii) Budgetary and Planning matters affect all aspects of the college community and, therefore, decisions in this area should be arrived at only after all members of the community have had a formal opportunity to make > iii) Matters of discipline must be handled in such a way as to provide for the protection of all individuals ghts to due process. The procedures must also protect the rights of the community and preserve the integrity of the college. For these procedures to be effective, the members of the community must share a commitment the principle of institutional self-governance.

iv) The general administration of the college exists to serve the needs of the faculty and students and as an extension of the President's leadership role. Administrators are appointed by the president and responsible to im, and these administrators, together with the President as members of the college community, should be FEBRUARY 9, 1971.

This responsibility carries with it not only the right to ave the controlling influence in this area, but also the duty to contribute the time and effort necessary to satisfy this responsibility. Since the academic program owes its existence primarily to the student body is erves, the students should have a participating role in the academic decision-making process. Likewise, the lministrators, who are to be charged with carrying out the decisions, should participate in the formulation of plicy. All students and faculty are members of the college community and provision should be made for the epresentation in the decision-making process of all classes of students, full-time, part-time, matriculated, on-matriculated and students enrolled in special programs; and all classes of faculty, full-time, part-time ured, non-tenured, adjunct and visiting faculty. Each department should be encouraged to develop a long range plan with regard to tenure policy. By having available information which clearly sets forth the consequences of tenuring members of the faculty in varying percentages, the department can be aided in setting guidelines for future tenure appointments. The criteria

While continuity is a valuable feature in a decision-making process, methods must be provided to permit the presentation of new ideas, and the promotion of experimentation designed to promote change. To this end, the cademic decision-making process should provide for participatory input on the part of new and younger

ii) The faculty has always had and shall continue to have the primary responsibility in the recruitment, promotion and retention of the faculty. The faculty has a special interest and responsibility to itself and for the good of the entire college community to ensure that the quality of its membership is maintained at a high level and that it continues to be responsive to the needs and aspirations of the student body. To ensure fairness and impar^iality in personnel matters, those bodies at the departmental, divisional and college level which are charged with the responsibility of exercising the faculty's role in personnel matters should draw their nembership from the faculty by election. One of the major functions of the undergraduate faculty member is classroom instruction and the consumers of that service, the students, are specially qualified to contribute to an evaluation of the quality of classroom instruction. The faculty, therefore, has the responsibility to tap this resource and to provide for a participatory role for students in personnel decisions that are based in whole, or n part, on teaching effectiveness and the general student-teacher relationship. This may, but need not, in dude student membership on personnel and budget committees.

Student evaluations of faculty classroom and teaching performance should be institutionalized as onamong a number of factors in considering promotion and tenure. The president shall take such studen evaluations into account in making personnel recommendations to the Boa ird, and the Board shall take sucl tudent evaluations into account in passing on such recommendations

iii) Impartiality without the leadership necessary to provide the means to encourage academic excellence can produce nothing more than mediocrity. In restructuring college governance the following guidelines with (Other members of the central staff should be available during the regular meetings of the council as authority, subject to the president, to function as the college's or school's chief academic officer charged with the presentation and development of the unit's academic excellence including but not limited to the recruitment, appointment, promotion and tenuring of the instructional staff. The importance to the faculty and the college of this position makes it imperative that the individual occupying the position of academic dean be acceptable to both the president and the faculty. Such appointments should be made by the president only with the advice and consultation of the faculty or an elected representative faculty body through the establishmen of an appropriate search committee procedure. In addition each college, or each division and school within college should establish a small academic review committee to review all appointment, promotion and tenure recommendations. The review committee should be chaired by the academic dean and its membership should be elected by the personnel and budget committee. Alternately, a majority of the members may be elected by the faculty with the rest chosen by the personnel and budget committee from among the departmenta chairmen. It might be decided that for review purposes the academic review committee should replace the personnel and budget committee, or that it act as an additional review. In either case, the recommendations of the review committee should be made to the president and reported to the personnel and budget committee

IN THE COMMUNITY COLLEGES:

In the community colleges teaching effectiveness and classroom performance should be an overriding consideration; these are also important in the senior colleges but there scholarship and professional standing play a more significant role. While the recommendations made above with respect to the senior college: should also be implemented in the community colleges the overriding emphasis must be given to th dopment of means for the measurement and evaluation of teaching effectiveness and classroom per ormance. The community colleges are therefore directed - faculty, students and administration - to immediately begin studying means for the measurement and evaluation of classroom teaching performance The suggestions contained in the paper "Evaluating Teaching Effectiveness in the Community Colleges." (Appendix) can be used as a starting point for such study.

The recommendations made above with respect to the community colleges have general applicability to the enior colleges as well. Those institutions should also develop means of implementing the type of suggestions contained in the Teaching Effectiveness Report, but in any event, should file with the Board a plan designed to enable him to absorb from, as well as contribute to the educational process. The college exists for the preservation, development and transmission of knowledge and it is the students who enable these ends to be

i) Student activities are part of the educational process and take place within the context of the college community. These activities are primarily the students' contribution to the academic program and are a means of self-education. The students should have primary control and decision-making authority in these

ii) Because of the size and complexity of the student body, means of self-government must be devised which provide for the full representation of all segments of the student body and which can prevent the control of the decision-making bodies by a minority against the will of the majority iii) Since the administration of the college and the operation of the academic program directly affects the students and after graduation indirectly affects them as members of the geographical community, the decision-making process in these areas should provide for substantial student input to enable both to meet the

iv) The students are entitled to the full rights of any member of society and enjoy the protection of due process of law. With these rights go the corresponding duty to respect the rights of other members of the ollege community as well as the integrity of the community as a whole.

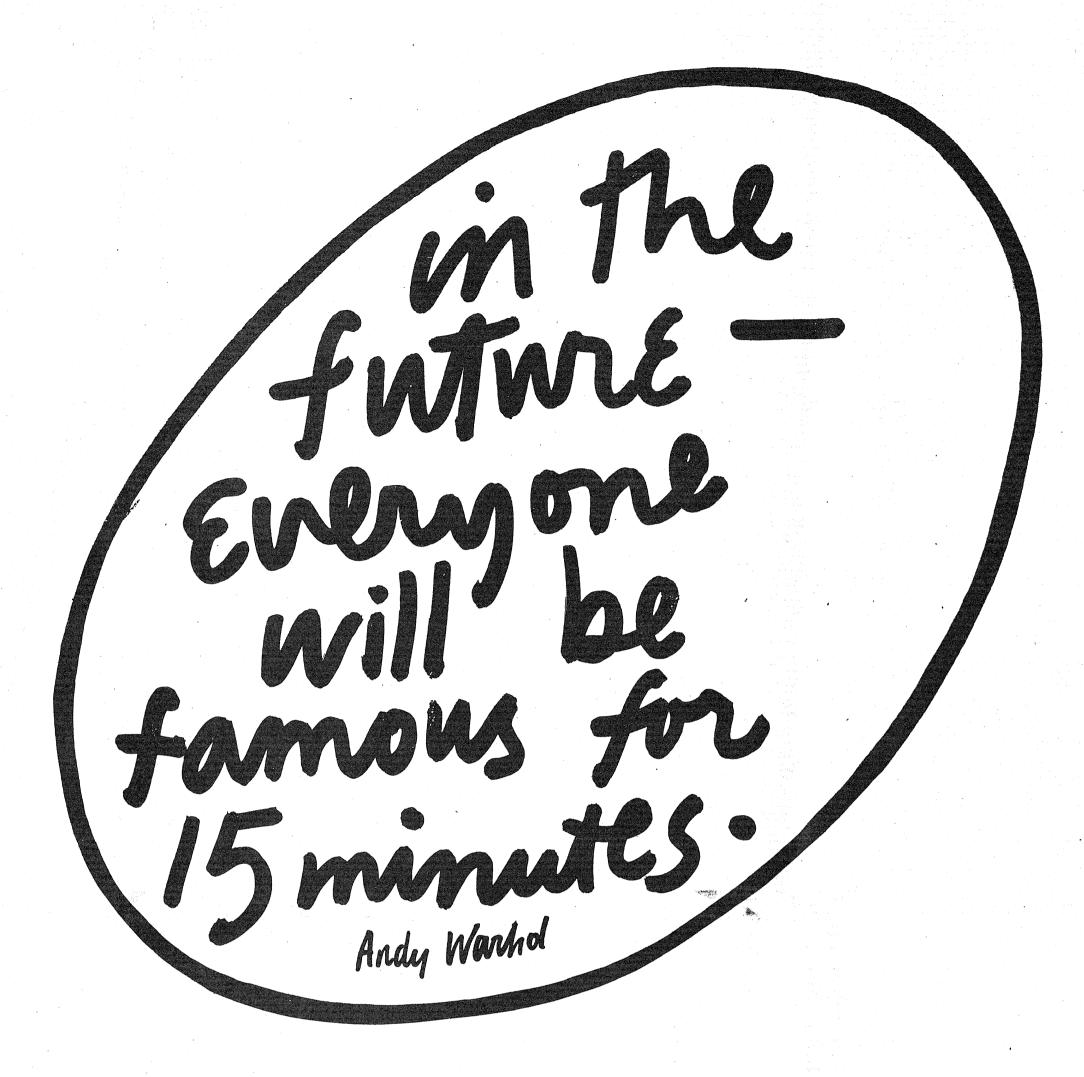

The college community should be reminded that the rights and responsibilities of the constituent groups in the community are in no sense absolute prerogatives. The President has the duty to act affirmatively for the good of the community where either the students or faculty have abused their rights or neglected their responsibility. In a similar manner the Chancellor and the Board have the duty so to act when the President is

The Board believes that the college community can meet the needs of its membership only if the individual lembers share a commitment to self-government, which provides for the widest expression of differing view vithin a framework of rationality and calm designed to prevent interference with the rights of the individual nembers of the community. The Board further believes that self-government can only be successful if each ommunity is permitted the freedom to design its own structure within a basic framework of rights and responsibilities. The Board, therefore, directs that each college of the University be free to design a governance structure within the framework of this statement. This freedom carries with it the responsibility of each segment of the college community to actively pursue the aims set forth in the Board's statement on May 5, 1969 and, therefore, the Board now directs that each college present to the board for approval a plan for college governance no later than September 1971. Until such plans are approved by the Board, the colleges are to be verned by any governance plan now in effect and the present bylaws of the Board of Higher Education.

News Ferry Needs Twenty People...

We are looking for twenty students interested in various facets of the Publishing industry. Students can be from any study curriculum, but must be able to devote 15 hours per week to the News Ferry production schedule.

The rewards of working with the News Ferry will vary with the intern and his or her job function. However, to all interns:

We can guarantee resume credentials as a staff member of a working press. The News Ferry is no "test tube" publication. It can and will hold its own with any community press. As such, you will carry a specific job function with specific criteria and definitions of success.

We can guarantee personal recommendations from professional staff. The people you work with will vary with your job. But all of them are well credentialed and experienced in their fields. See "Who Staff's the News Ferry" for resume highlights of staff credentials to date.

We can offer you a concentrated program of referral services for scholarships; advanced study placement; free-lance and part-time work in the field; and permanent job placements. We are currently utilizing News Ferry research resources to build a dossier of schools, publishing houses and Cold Type industries willing to work with News Ferry interns.

We will make every effort to provide credit for your News Ferry activities. Toward that end, we are currently meeting with directors of Experimental programs. In addition, we will approach any counselors or faculty in your area of study to negotiate independent study or other credit arrangements that meet your scholastic requirements and theirs.

Who Staffs The News Ferry...

All staff members have in common a single factor, production experience. News Ferry staff members' academic credentials range from a basic Bachelor's Degree to MFA's. Because we are a production house, however, our orientation is more toward what they have done in the field. Following are some of the different staff members who have worked for the News Ferry to date:
