

1959

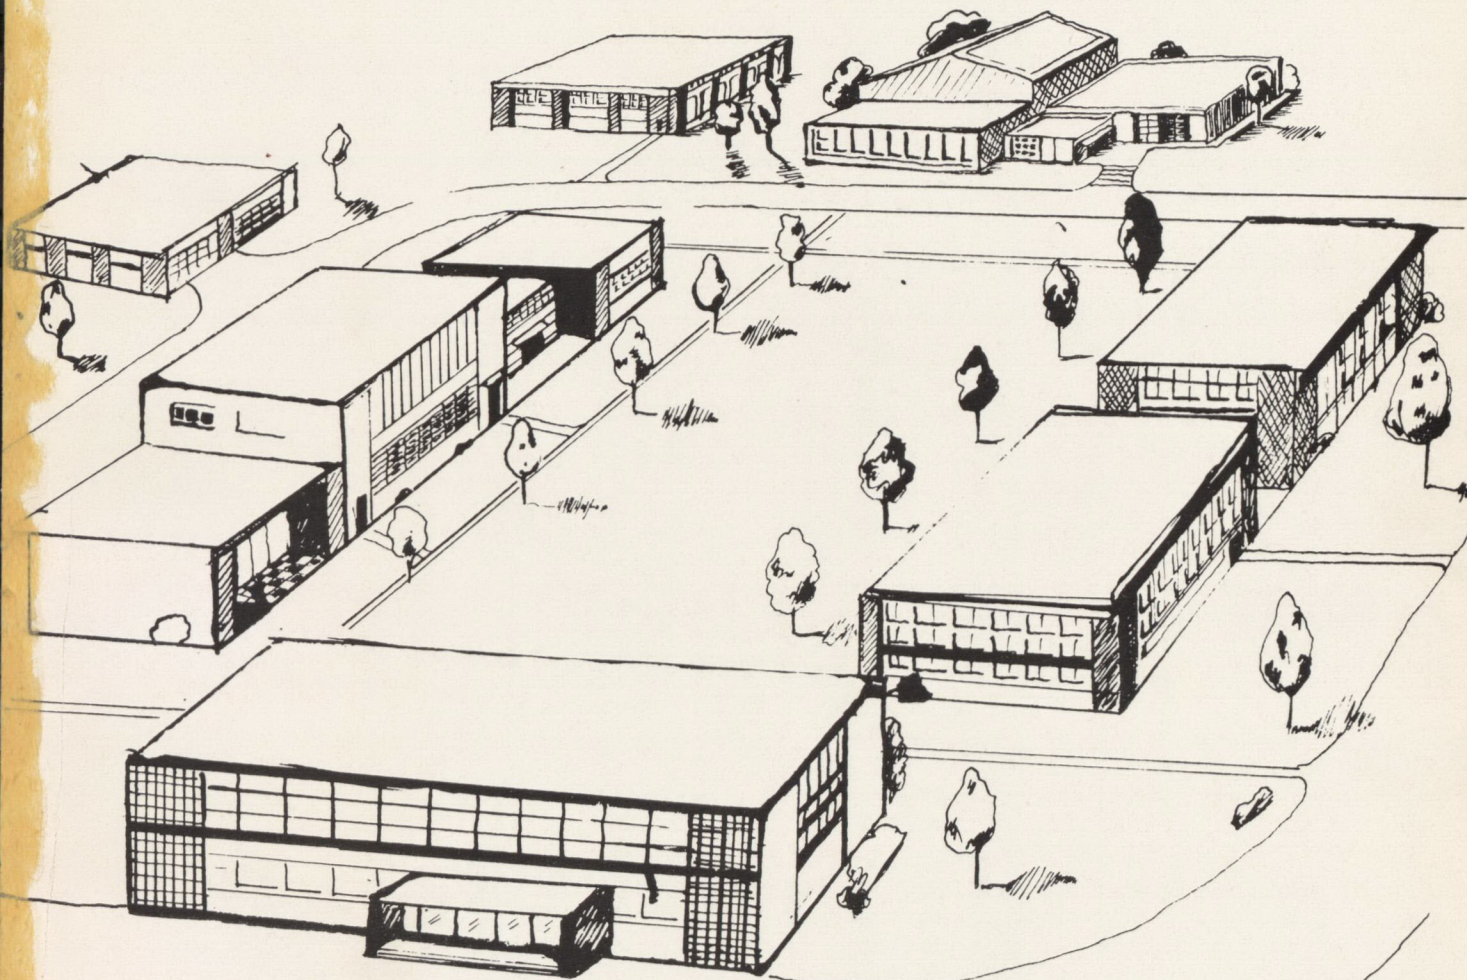

MAY 1970

Yesterday, finding myself with a lot of time on my hands and little to do, I decided to take a ride to Sunnyside to visit Staten Island Community College. It was something I had meant to do since my graduation as an upper sophomore in 1960, but I hadn't had an opportunity to do so before.

As I rode towards the large, modern university across the one hundred and some odd acres of green and flowering campus, it seemed impossible that just ten years ago this school was nothing more than a converted Con Edison building with about two hundred and fifty students and Bay Street and Parringtons serving as its campus.

I parked my car and entered the main building. With the hundreds of students scurrying back and forth I completed my tour of the gymnasium, the swimming pool, the library, the cafeteria, the lounges and the classrooms.

It seemed hard to believe that so many changes and advancements could have taken place in such a short period of time. An hour or two later I returned to my car with a warmth and a sense of pride at the thought that I was a pioneer in these happenings and these old familiar words flashed into my mind. "Our school is not the biggest, but we hope to make it the best."

A Message to the Class of 1959

Henry Ward Beecher once said "Every tomorrow has two handles. We can take hold of it with the handle of anxiety or the handle of faith.

"We should live for the future and yet should find our life in the fidelities of the present; the last is the only method of the first."

The Class of 1959 will be graduated in a year which is expected to be one of greatest opportunity and at the same time one of greatest anxiety. Like Beecher, I suggest that you take hold of your tomorrow with "the handle of faith." Faith in what? Faith in the future of the world and of mankind; faith in your college and in the education you received from it; and, most of all, faith in yourself. For some years you will have neither time nor responsibility in this onrushing world for anxiety concerning economic depression, war, or possible incineration of the earth by a frustrated, mad dictator. Any or all of these imposters may overtake us, but there is nothing which you can do about it.

Little did we as youth dream that the time would come when the adage "hitch your wagon to a star" given us by our advisers would become a literal possibility. No doubt the field of space travel, exploration, and perhaps colonization, will provide bright futures for many, perhaps even some of you, in the years to come.

The old adage is still valid, however, in its original concept. I exhort each of you to set your goal high but, as Beecher implied, to keep your feet on the ground. You will not reach the "star" in a blaze of light in the figurative sense although it may now become possible in a literal sense. The sure way to get there is by steady, hard work, and by adding to your knowledge, meanwhile building a reputation for reliability and integrity and cultivating a personality to win favor among your friends and co-workers. As the poet Longfellow put it (and he is still correct)

"The heights by great men reached and kept
Were not attained by sudden flight,
But they, while their companions slept,
Were toiling upward in the night."

“The Dolphins,” coached by Carl Ferguson, have brought many victories to S.I.C.C. The “old pros” from last year and the “rookies” of this year have struggled to make the team great. In the future we hope to see “The Dolphins” fame rise throughout the state.

Like all college students who want to get away from the books for a while, the golf team looks forward to a day on the green. Here they enjoy improving their game, and at the same time bring notice to the name of the school through their membership in an intercollegiate league. They play against such schools as Orange County, Westchester, St. Peters and other metropolitan schools. Membership is open to all regular students.

Golf Team

L. TO R.—Dolores Garcia, Barbara Greenstein, Eileen Gelles, Maureen Formica, Anne Marie Hauspurg.

"We are The Dolphins and we couldn't be prouder," are the cries of the S.I.C.C. cheerleaders. Eileen, captain; Anne, co-captain; Mo; Greenie; and Dodie are found at every basketball game cheering the team on to victory. These girls add spirit and excitement to each game with their enthusiasm and vitality.

Like the name suggests, our yearbook, the Ancora, anchors for its subscribers the memories of their lives at S.I.C.C. Through the workings of its vast staff which includes typists, writers, layout editors, business division, artists, photographers, etc., the nucleus of this machine, the editor-in-chief, presents to the printers our little world. The Ancora recalls for us the classes, the breaks between, the extra activities, and the services of the college.

Like a city's major newspaper, our Dolphin, S.I.C.C.'s newspaper, undergoes the trials and tribulations, the anxieties and excitement of putting a paper to bed. Secretly they collect the school's news and present them for the students to read. From sheer unbiased accounts of major events to the writing of special features, the Dolphin covers the miniature world of S.I.C.C.

A permanent student government was organized in May, 1957, to accept the Constitution. Elections for the offices of President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer and also of Senators for upper-term students take place annually in May. The election of Senators to represent incoming freshmen students takes place soon after.

The various offices and activities of the Student Government provide ample opportunity for students to participate actively in this phase of the operation of the college.

Language Club

A club for language students to increase and broaden their knowledge of foreign cultures and societies. The club creates a better understanding between the culture of the United States and the cultures of foreign countries in several ways, among which are: The annual covered dish supper, skits in foreign languages, and trips to places which are concerned with foreign countries.

Under the guidance of Hilde Jaeckel, this has become one of the leading clubs in the school.

The Electrical Society was created so that the students in the electrical department may know the latest developments in their field. This is achieved by field trips, such special projects as a "ham radio set" for those interested in amateur radio, seminars to which guest speakers are invited to discuss and inform the society about latest developments.

Electrical Society

The Technical Society, in considering one of the objectives, which is to develop a fully integrated person, will aid in providing the atmosphere to promote a better understanding as to the nature of our American civilization. These aims are encouraged through the presentation of forums, films, field trips, and speakers of the various industrial and technical organizations.

Technical Society

Phi Alpha Sigma

Basically, Phi Alpha Sigma is a social club open to all male students. The club's activities include bowling, dances, picnics, boat rides, movies, and slides. However, the club has a serious side, it has sponsored monthly seminars in which aspects of the college's departments are discussed by their department heads. The club mixes a merry combination of gaiety and seriousness hoping to develop its members socially and intellectually.

A society for students matriculated in the Department of Business Technology. The Society was organized to further the interests of students in all aspects of business. Among its objectives are: The constructive contribution to school life.

Beta Tau meets regularly, and, through its program, attempts to bring into practical focus the theories and applications of business beyond the college curriculum. Through field trips and talks from representative business leaders, students have an opportunity to learn first hand about career opportunities and to become acquainted with business organizations and their functioning.
