

NEPENGHE

NEPENGHE

Time has stilled the grief of ages and man in the distance of his years Hearing the harangues which echo

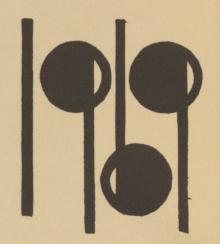

from your hearts

Clutches at his world to stop the blood But finds no wound. Universal elixir, soporific to our pain, quencher of our fear, Renders him at one with himself and the Universe.

DEDICATED TO

THE CLASS OF 1969

The quiet morning was not prepared
For the oncoming intellectual plexus
Softly dropping hot dog wrappers
On the cement pedestal of the university.
Inside, the silence of now-finished construction
Reached a point of spontaneous combustion
When blind glass doors were flung open
And dissolved the objective inertia of glass headed commune
And distilled the subjective inertia of

Transient minds —

Hesitantly approaching alabaster elevators with

Contemplative presence of the linear image,

The construction of community

The assemblage of fragmented disparate humanity

Into an indwelling,

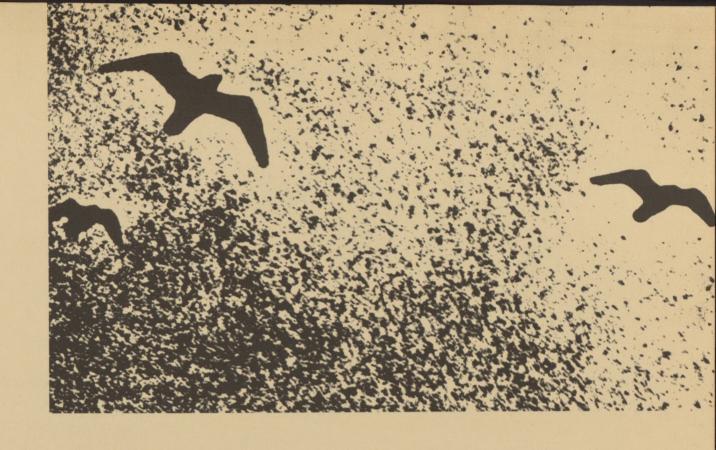

A commingling of the inanimate and the real,

A commingling of the inanimate and the real, Wholeness of severence restored within our walls; These we have seen and will continue to see Before our dance is ended.

The days merge into endless nights;
Nights filled with the process of humanity,
Scenes of scholastic endeavor tempered
By the growing awareness of community.
The loss of self within the context
Of selfless pursuits yet
Discovery of self embodied in original loss.
Therefore, let us dance once for the present company
A minuet or perhaps one last waltz;
Then make as if to go, a farewell
To host grown faint grey with age,
And walk in quarter time

Down the white road.

It seems such a short time ago that the first group of faculty met the first group of students amid the bang of hammers and the rasp of saws in our as yet incomplete facilities. We are all a bit older now, and hopefully more than a bit wiser. While buildings do eventually get completed, people don't and shouldn't. It has been said that there is no one so dead as the one who ceases to grow. If life at Richmond College, for both faculty and students, has any meaning, it must help all of us to determine that growth, not decline, hope not despair, improvement, not maintaining the status quo, should characterize the actions and thoughts of those who became members, however briefly, of the Richmond College family. To those who graduate I express the hope that you will never leave us, if only in your thoughts. Richmond College exists only to serve its students, our evolving democratic society, and the expansion of knowledge in the service of mankind. I trust that by the time you leave us, the symbol of your graduation in your hand, you will realize that the distinction between faculty and administration on the one hand, and students on the other, will have been blurred to such an extent that you feel yourselves a contributing part of just one entity, the Richmond College community.

Colleagues all, I greet you.
